WILE SAYS:

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Another "career diplomat" who has just taken a rest from the "hot" life of a diplomat is under the impression that he is not going to be slated for an important position in the state department, and the post to which it is reported that President Coolidge shortly will elevate him is an assistant secretary of state. The position will become vacant with the impending transfer of Colonel Robert E. Olds to the undersecretaryship of state, now held by Joseph C. Grew, ambassador-designate to Turkey. Mr. Johnson is one of the United States' foremost authorities on China and the Far East. He is a native of Washington, D. C., but claims Oklahoma as his residence. Johnson this summer is completing his twentieth successive year in the foreign service.

AUSTRIA WELCOMES AMERICAN AIRMEN; VISIT PRAGUE NEXT

Premier And Mayor Of Vienna Receive Distances Aces

VIENNA, June 20.—Under an escort of mounted police and hailed by admiring throngs the two American airmen, Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, drove through the streets of Vienna in state today.

Accompanied by United States Minister Washburn the two fliers went to the governmental palace where they were received in audience by Premier Seipel, who gave them a warm greeting in the name of the Austrian government.

Mayor Seitz of Vienna entertains the fliers at an official dinner to night and tomorrow President Hainisch will entertain them at luncheon, presenting each of them with a golden medal "for service."

On Wednesday the fliers will be entertained with a tea at the American legation.

On Thursday Chamberlin and Levine will fly to Prague, where President Masaryk has postponed his vacation in order to receive them.

MAINED VETERANS ATTEND SESSIONS

EL PASO, Tex., June 20.—Maimed men of the World War from all parts of the country assembled here today for the seventh national convention of the disabled American veterans.

President Coolidge sent a message from his summer home in the Black Hills of South Dakota, in which he praised the work the organization has done "to bring about the present satisfactory program of governmental relief."

"Sympathetically have you considered and zealously have you supported their needs," the president said. "The government gladly has recognized its obligations to its disabled veterans and their dependents. It has obtained generous and humane legislation for their benefit. Through the liberal interpretation and application of these laws it has been possible to extend to many thousands the financial and physical relief so much needed."

BRAZIL, Ind., June 20.—Heavy dust at the Sunflower race track was blamed for the tragedy in the first five mile elimination automobile race in which the car of Gerald Bush, 31, of Iowa City, Iowa, crashed into two other cars and then plunged into the spectators. Bush was killed and three spectators were injured.

LINDBERGH TO FOLLOW AIR GAME

COMMERCIAL LINES OVER ATLANTIC TO OCCUPY HIS FUTURE

Will Visit Many Cities Soon—Tour Not Arranged

ST. LOUIS, June 20.—Turning aside from public functions and popular acclaim, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh today began planning his business future and an aerial tour of the country in the interest of aviation.

While offers, involving millions of dollars and a variety of business opportunities, have been showered upon America's air idol, it was definitely learned that he intends to link his future to commercial aviation. His closest associates revealed that Lindbergh now plans to center his business activities on the development of trans-Atlantic commercial air lines, with St. Louis as a hub. He will make his headquarters in St. Louis too, the city which he frequently has described as his "home."

The first steps on the air king's scheduled tour of the country will be announced in a few days. He will accept as many as he humanly can of the fifty invitations given him to visit different cities, it was said. His tentative route will be arranged too so as to permit him to fly over the maximum number of cities and towns in order that the greatest possible number of people will be able to see his plane in flight if they cannot get a glimpse of the hero in person.

Lindbergh was reported anxious to visit all sections of the country. The invitations already extended

PILOT POWDERS NOSE WHILE IN MID-AIR

VIENNA, June 20.—Triumphal tours are not all joy. Charles A. Levine and Mrs. Clarence A. Chamberlin realize that today.

Mrs. Chamberlin, trailing her husband in his flight from Berlin to Vienna, was desperately ill. While flying from Berlin to Munich in a commercial plane she noticed that her pilot was constantly powdering his nose. That convinced her the pilot was not a fit person to fly with and she changed planes, but the second pilot, although not given to powdering his nose, failed to prevent Mrs. Chamberlin from suffering from aerial nausea to such an extent that she was taken to a field hospital on her arrival in Vienna, but quickly recovered.

Levine still suffers from painful bruises suffered in Munich. He was in danger of being trampled by enthusiastic mobs when an American correspondent picked him up and threw him into an automobile.

NOBEL BLAMED FOR ANTI-SOVIET PLOTS

MOSCOW, June 20.—The semi-official newspaper Izvestia created a sensation today by publishing charges that Gustav Nobel, descendant of the Nobel peace prize founder, has supported plots to assassinate Bukharin, Tchitcherin, Rakovskii and other Russian leaders.

Izvestia published what purported to be a confession signed by George Elvengren, recently executed, in which Elvengren asserted that Nobel had given him 80,000 francs in Paris in 1926 to "liquidate Soviet leaders." The alleged confession stated that Nobel hoped to regain Russian oil field properties through the overthrow of the Soviet government.

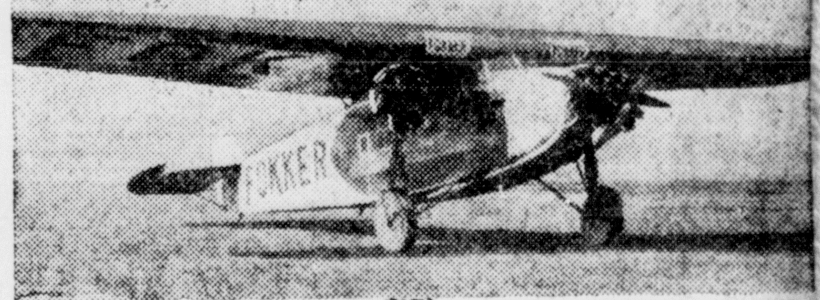

PASTOR OPPOSES SUNDAY SHUT DOWN

COLUMBUS, O., June 20.—The 300 Columbus pastors opposed to Sunday operation of skating rinks cited by a minister's committee before city council, does not include Rev. McIlvay R. Lichtner, pastor of First Congregational Church.

He told his congregation, "The church can never win people by setting itself against everything pleasant, Sunday or no Sunday," the minister declared.

It is believed they are to attempt the flight from the Pacific coast to Honolulu, but Major General Patrick, in command of the army's air service, says that no such hop has been authorized.

COOLIDGE WESTERN VISIT MAY BRING FORTH FARM RELIEF BILL

President Winning Converts To His Stand On McNary-Haugen Bill—Plans To Draft Satisfactory Bill While On Vacation

RAPID CITY, S. D., June 20.—President Coolidge, according to all indications, will leave the Black Hills of South Dakota this fall with a draft of a farm relief bill in his pocket, which will satisfy a great number of the farmers of the West, or at least be of such a nature as to be palatable.

Summertime in the heart of the region that fought so vigorously for the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill with its equalization fee and alleged "price-fixing" feature, the president already apparently has made long strides toward winning over the western agrarians.

"Why not," say a number of South Dakotans who manifestly are elated over Mr. Coolidge's presence in the Black Hills. "I never was for the McNary-Haugen bill." And there more cautious colleagues assert that at the time they were desperate and thought that nothing else having done any good, it "was worth a chance."

Perhaps the first major convert to the administration viewpoint is Senator Norbeck. The South Dakota political leader voted for the McNary-Haugen bill, but the president's decision to summer here probably will make it difficult for him to oppose the Coolidge program in the next session of congress.

Before the season is over, Mr. Coolidge will have conferred with a number of agricultural leaders. He made it known last week at the temporary executive offices that he looked forward to quite a few meetings on the subject of farm relief.

The importance of formulating an acceptable compromise farm program has been impressed on the president quite forcibly. Just before his departure from Washington, he invited Gov. Hammill of Iowa, to the White House. Iowa at present is leaning strongly toward the candidacy of Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, generally accepted champion of the farmer, and Hammill has been fairly accurately identified with the movement.

"Iowa," said Hammill at the time, will be for President Coolidge for re-election. In 1928—provided he works out a broad and satisfactory program of relief which will pass the next session of congress. Otherwise, Iowa regards Lowden in a very friendly fashion."

The industrial east and south are regarded as "in the bag" by Coolidge managers insofar as the 1928 convention is concerned.

RUSSIAN AVIATRIX PLANS TO FLY FROM NEW YORK TO EUROPE

NEW YORK, June 20.—Inspired by the achievement of Lindbergh, a woman—Madame Luba Philipp, Russian aviatrix—plans to fly across the Atlantic Ocean within three weeks, she said today.

Rome is her goal, and she will fly alone.

"What a man can do a woman can do," she said. "I am confident I can make it."

She is a slender little woman of grace and daintiness. She made some 3,000 flights, many of them on the Russian front, during the war. She was granted her international pilot's license in Russia in November, 1911. A year later she broke all records of that time for altitude by women flyers, rising 8,000

CONGRESS WILL ASK APPROVAL OF LARGE REDUCTION IS SAID

Experts Preparing Summary To Give Secretary Mellon

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Congress will hand the American people a Christmas present in the form of a tax cut of about $300,000,000 next December with the sanction of the treasury department, treasury officials predicted today.

While no definite announcement is expected before Secretary of the Treasury Mellon returns from a European trip in the fall, it is certain that a substantial cut will be approved.

Under Secretary Ogden L. Mills and a corps of experts will study the tax situation during Mellon's absence and will have a report up on which the secretary will base his annual report to congress by September.

Income tax payments for the fiscal year ending June 30, under the 1926 revenue act, will exceed those in 1925, under the much higher rates of the 1925 law by nearly $500,000,000, experts predicted. This remarkable showing is in spite of the reduction of the tax burden by nearly $400,000,000 in the 1925 law.

The 1927 income tax collections, according to today's treasury figures, will pass $2,225,000,000 as compared to $1,982,000,000 during the first year's application of the present law.

While the small taxpayer is expected to get little direct benefit from the contemplated reduction, indirectly, according to officials, the entire population, whether or not taxpayers, will profit through a reduced overhead of general business.

Preliminary plans of the treasury look to a probable cut of one per cent in the corporation tax, a substantial reduction in the maximum surtaxes and the elimination of most of the remaining war taxes. A simplification of some provisions of the revenue act is contemplated.

In virtually all classes of income the government's revenue will be greater in 1927 than in any normal year in history. Customs collections are expected to go over $601,000,000, while all revenue will total $4,000,000,000 mark.

The treasury will find its vaults at the close of the year with at least $600,000,000 more than is needed for operating expenses, all of which will be devoted to a record slash over $1,000,000,000 in the public debt, with a correspondingly heavy cut in interest costs.

SOJOURNERS MEET

CLEVELAND, O., June 20.—The National Sojourners Club, a Masonic order of army, navy and marine corps officers, opens its seventh annual convention here today. Business sessions will occupy attention of delegates Monday and Tuesday. The formal banquet and military ball will be held Tuesday evening.

WELL-TO-DO SPINSTER HELD IN ALLEGED PLOT TO KILL THREE

Declare Woman And Her Maid Were In Conspiracy To Kill Sister And Her Family—New Brunswick Mystery

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 20.—Further evidence to substantiate the fantastic and amazing story of a plot to kill a family of three, is being sought by the authorities today as Miss Bessie Morse, aged 40, and well to do, was released upon $7,000 bail. The bail was furnished by Miss Morse's 84-year-old father, a wealthy land owner of Prospect Plains.

Miss Morse and her negro maid, Mamie Todd, thirty-one, are charged with conspiracy to murder. The charge was made after County Detective David declared before Judge Kirkpatrick that evidence had been obtained to connect them with a plot to kill Miss Morse's sister, Mrs. Grace Dey, her husband, Elmer, and their adopted son, Raymond, seventeen.

The original plan, it is alleged, was to kill Miss Morse's father and mother. Her mother, Mrs. Catherine Morse, died of natural causes on April 24.

Miss Morse denies all charges and has engaged Freeman Woodbridge, of New Brunswick, to defend her.

The culmination of several weeks work by Detective David and his two aides, in which they posed as gunmen, came Friday with the arrest of Mamie Todd. Saturday, Miss Morse was arrested.

VOLUNTEER UNIT TO ENFORCE DRY LAW IS FORMED IN CAPITAL

Former Pastor To Hardening Head Of Dry "Snoopers"

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Led by the Rev. Wm. S. Abernethy, pastor to the late President Harding, two thousand capital residents formed themselves today into a volunteer prohibition enforcement unit. Their object is to inform police and dry agents of liquor law violations.

"Our enemies," said Abernethy, "can call us cellar snoopers or anything they like. We mean business. We mean to clean up Washington. Of all the places in the country, surely Washington should observe the law."

Chief of Police Hesse attended the mass meeting which sponsored the dry volunteer work. He said the police would be glad of assistance, but warned the volunteers against being over zealous.

"Innocent persons must not be subjected to embarrassment and persecution," he warned. "Mere suspicion is not sufficient for a raid."

The Rev. George M. Diffenderfer declared that recently only policemen known to be dry had been pushed ahead in the promotion lists.

"The powers that be have been told," he said, "that if you appoint anyone who is not a dry you do so at your own risk." He did not identify "the powers."

VATICAN MAY MOVE FOR CHINESE PEACE

ENCYCLICAL SAYS

Pope Deplores Civil War—Commends Church In Mexico

ROME, June 20.—Possible attempts by the vatican to end the civil war in China, were hinted at today by the Pope in an encyclical to the clergy now in session.

The Pope devoted most of the encyclical to the Chinese warfare, to praise of the churchmen of Mexico for their attitude in the religious controversy there. He also made references to the French nationalists of the action française.

After deploring the horrors of the Chinese civil war, the Pope expressed the opinion that these horrors are due less to the Chinese people, whom he described as peace loving, than to "imported subversive doctrines."

Reaffirming the vatican's love and regard for the ancient nation of China, the Pope praised the missionaries and Christians for their faithful service in China, and intimated that he is now considering launching a peace appeal to end the warfare.

Turning to the religious controversy in Mexico the Pope declared the "shedding of blood for religious liberty and the deeds of the bishops, the clergy and the brethren are among the illustrious deeds in the history of the church."

The Episcopate of the United States also came in for papal praise in connection with the Mexican controversy, the Pope declaring that the American Episcopate is doing its best to illuminate world opinion regarding the conditions of the Catholic Church in Mexico.

Throughout the entire encyclical there was a plea for peace and prayers that "troubled conditions now existent may soon pass away."

Whether Byrd will be satisfied with a hop to Paris, without going further, was a matter of conjecture today. The belief persists that he will attempt something more spectacular although Byrd says his original plans have not been changed.

It is reported that when Byrd gets to Paris he will make another take-off—perhaps to some other large city, or back to America.

"Nothing will be decided until after we get Paris," said Byrd.

PROPOSAL TO CHECK NAVY COMPETITION BEFORE CONFERENCE

American Delegates Offer Plan For 5-5-3 Ratio

GENEVA, June 20.—A concrete proposal designed to eliminate the last vestige of naval competition between the great powers was laid before the Geneva arms conference today by the American delegation.

The American program, toiled down, was that the 5-5-3 ratio of capital ship strength, established at the Washington conference six years ago, be extended to cover all remaining classes of fighting craft.

Japan will agree with the United States in opposing any reduction in the maximum tonnage of capital ships, a suggestion which is expected to come from Great Britain.

Furthermore Japan will support the French contention that small ships, for purposes of disarmament, should be divided only into two categories, surface craft and submarines.

PLANE CRASHES

SISTERVILLE, W. Va., June 20.—An airplane manned by Leo Terletzky and Charles Prohnske, both of New York, was wrecked in making a landing near New Martinsville, W. Va., late Sunday, while enroute from Troy, O., to New York. The fliers got off their plane, attempted to land in a wheat field to ascertain directions, and the ship plunged nose first into the soft mud. Neither man was injured.

ODD FELLOWS MEET

WOOSTER, O., June 20.—The Grand Lodge of the I. O. O. F. opens its 95th annual convention here today, continuing through June 24. About 6,000 visitors are expected. Delegates from approximately seventy-five lodges will attend.

NAVAL FLYER HOPES TO LAUNCH ATTEMPT TUESDAY AT SUNSET

Will Start at Night To Reach Paris In Daytime

NEW YORK, June 20.—Commander Richard E. Byrd hopes that weather conditions will permit him to hop off for Paris tomorrow evening, or, at the latest, Wednesday.

He wants to take off at sunset or early in the morning as Lindbergh and Chamberlin did. Early morning had been considered the best time for the hop-off because of atmospheric conditions, but Byrd pointed out that by leaving about six in the evening he could land in Europe in daytime.

Byrd said today that he will seek an air lane across the Atlantic which will afford the maximum in speed with the greatest margin of safety. Some day this course may be the every-day air route to Europe.

The huge three-motored plane America has been gone over thoroughly and is ready for the trip. Members of Byrd's crew, Bert Acosta, the pilot and Lieut. G. O. Sottile, the engineer, are waiting impatiently for the time for the take-off. The name of the fourth person who may make the trip has not been revealed although it is reported he will be Bert Balchen, formerly of the Norwegian navy.

Unfavorable weather still prevails over the Atlantic. There are headwinds from New York to Newfoundland and from Newfoundland to mid-ocean. From that point to Ireland storms are raging.

Everything on this trip will be done on a scientific basis. Byrd will explore the various air lanes over the Atlantic with the idea of determining which one is the best. He will have all the instruments which Lindbergh had, including the earth inductor compass, and several more, the most important of which is the bubble sextant, by means of which the exact position of the plane may be determined and plotted on the chart.

"I hope to learn to some extent the quickest and safest course to Europe," said Byrd. "There are not necessarily the same."

"The quickest course may be the southern end of a low area, or area of storm, where a strong westerly wind would blow the plane along at high speed. Such a course however, might be dangerous."

"It would be of great scientific value to learn more about the weather conditions that prevail above the surface of the ocean on the edges of the low pressure areas."

Whether Byrd will be satisfied with a hop to Paris, without going further, was a matter of conjecture today. The belief persists that he will attempt something more spectacular although Byrd says his original plans have not been changed.

It is reported that when Byrd gets to Paris he will make another take-off—perhaps to some other large city, or back to America.

"Nothing will be decided until after we get Paris," said Byrd.

Most Nurses Use New Face Powder
MELLO-GLO, the new wonderful French Process Face Powder, is preferred by nurses because of its purity, and they say it does not make the skin dry and drawn. YOUTH DETAINED BY POLICE AFTER GIRL BECOMES ILL HERE

Arthur Vance, 22, is being detained at Police Headquarters while a further investigation is made concerning the mysterious illness of Lydia Allen, 23, girl friend of Vance, who is seriously ill at her home on Chestnut St.

Patrolman Fred Jones and Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, arrested Vance early Monday morning, after what was presumably an all night party.

The youth said he procured a bottle containing four ounces of spirits of peppermint at her request. The preparation contains 85 per cent alcohol.

Police think the girl drank a greater part of the liquid and it apparently affected her in such a manner as to interfere with her speech. Dr. A. D. DeHaven was called on the case and the girl was removed from the home of Joseph Dudley, Glad Ave., where she had been taken by the boy, to her home, Monday.

Pending the outcome of her condition, Vance is being held at Police Headquarters on an old fine, which he has never paid.

BILIOUS? DON'T BE!

Biliousness is a symptom, not a disease. A bad taste in the mouth, gassy stomach, gas that may be cause of neglected constipation. Ordinary laxatives don't seem to help much, because the liver, the stomach, the spleen, and the intestines, all have to be aided. Constipation slows up the function of and interferes even with the brain's activity.

Blackburn's Cocoa-Royal Pills arouse the liver, tone up the stomach and intestines, stimulate the glandular secretions, in a pleasant perfect way. When the internal organs function regularly, away goes biliousness, sour stomach, and indigestion.

Have you a throbbing at the temples, a bad taste in the mouth, halitosis (unpleasant breath), sour, bilious stomach, dark rings under the eyes and an irritable don't-care-laxative? Take Blackburn's Cocoa-Royal Pills. Wake up your ambition and energy and feel good every day. In less than a dozen hours you will be on the "well" road. Forty-five pills—30 cts.—at all drugstores.

NO ACTION TAKEN ON FINDINGS MADE

No action has been taken relative to findings against three members of the Xenia Twp. Board of Education totaling $1,290.14 and other school board officials, as contained in a report of the recent state examination of Greene County schools.

Prosecutor J. C. Marshall had "nothing to say" on the subject when asked Monday what, if any, action would be taken, in view of the report.

The report charged three members of the Xenia Twp. school board, who are stockholders in the Xenia Farmers Exchange Co., with letting contracts to this firm, in violation of the state law.

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

In the rush and crush of Lindbergh excitement at Washington during the recent week-end, inadequate attention was paid to as important an announcement as has emanated from the state department in many a day. It was officially made known that the French government has been informed of the United States' readiness to hold diplomatic conversations over M. Briand's proposal of a Franco-American agreement to outlaw war between the two countries. Perhaps Secretary Kellogg thought that "Lindbergh Day" was an ideal moment for promulgating the news. The state department communique was being issued just about the time the gallant air colonel was delivering, on the Washington monument grounds, the message of good will which France asked him to take home with him.

FINDS VALUE IN SILENCE

Ambassador Houghton is tarrying in Washington on leave from the Court of St. James at London. Our envoy to Great Britain is found by capital correspondents conspicuously less communicative than he was in the spring of 1926, when Mr. Houghton's observations on the European situation created a near-crisis "over there" and a storm in the United States senate. Private affairs largely, the ambassador asserts, bring him home at this time. The forty-first reunion of his Harvard class is one of the Houghton missions on native heath. The ambassador is loud in praise of Lindbergh's bearing in England. "He's a boy of whom we can all be very proud," Mr. Houghton avers, "for he has received honors unprecedented and kept his head."

PRAISING ACHIEVEMENT

The young people who are graduating from schools and colleges are entitled to words of praise from the community. They have done something for the community in fitting themselves to take a responsible part in the duties of citizenship.

They have had many incitements to waste their time during these years of study. The fact that they won these diplomas proves that they have resisted many temptations to idleness and dissipation, and people have good reason for commending their effort, which works for the public good.

The Way of the World

By Grove Patterson

TO WED OR NOT TO WED

Two young farmers, 18 years old each, attended an Agricultural College Farm Week. Interviewed by a newspaper reporter, they say that above all things a farmer should not marry. They say farm work is too hard for women. Which shows truly enough that they are only 18 years old. Farm work in the history of America has not been too hard for women. To the wives of farmers all over this land goes much of the credit and the glory for the successful management of thousands of farms. Ask the farmer how he would get along without his wife.

AGE CURES MANY THINGS

Mrs. Marie Carlson entertained her friends at her birthday party in Brooklyn, N. Y., by dancing. She likes dancing and she likes the modern girl. Perhaps it should be mentioned that Mrs. Carlson is 100 years old. She knows a lot about girls and boys and life. Youth is gay, she says, not bad. "Girls will become more reserved as they grow older." Quite right. Age cures many things. It cures youth and the faults of youth. All we need is patience.

DON'T PITY YOURSELF

The fellow who is always feeling sorry for himself sometimes succeeds in making others feel sorry for him. But he does it at high cost. It costs him popularity and finally respect. He makes himself a prize bore and in the end he finds he has aroused more disgust than pity. No man should ever be a pathetic figure to himself. If he is, it proves that he has no sense of humor. You can have a good enough time with one arm, but life is about fifty per cent grief if you have no sense of humor.

How to Achieve Beauty

CHANGE YOUR BEAUTY REGIMEN IN SUMMER

My vast experience in treating complexions in every climate under the sun has probably been more responsible than anything else in bringing me to a keen realization of the overpowering effect which climatic conditions have upon the skin.

In fact, it was these very climatic reactions upon the skin which account for my career as a beauty specialist.

Back in Australia, over thirty years ago, the women of that country with their more or less continually moist weather-beaten skins, marveled at the freshness of my complexion. Their eagerness for relief from climatic damages to their skins resulted in directing my attention to dermatology and beauty chemistry. These studies fascinated me and then became an obsession that knew no limit, until I had absorbed the best knowledge which the leading universities of Europe could offer on the subject of the skin.

It was during my first professional years in Australia that I began to divide skins into three fundamental groups—oily, dry and normal—and to treat them accordingly.

Your type of skin depends not only upon the climate in which you live, but also upon the environment of your forebears. Think for a moment of the clear fresh skin of the Scandinavian—of the swarthy olive complexion of the Italian or Spaniard—the fine texture and delicate coloring of the Anglo-Saxon—the more durable skin of the Teuton. Even here, in America, the contrasting complexions of the northern and southern girls furnish evidence of the effects which different climates have upon the skin.

Every woman, if she is observant, can see that her own skin changes in texture from season to season, and that is why I am admonishing you just now, at the beginning of summer, to choose a new beauty regimen that will keep your skin at its best during the warm weather.

Women who live where the air is more or less continually moist almost always have finer complexions than those who live in sections of the country where the altitude is very high and that are swept by hot winds to make the skin coarse and sallow. Nature's deficiencies must, therefore, be made up by the consistent use of good beauty creams, that cleanse and nourish, soothing lotions that brace, and firm make-up that acts as a protection.

Therefore, my articles this week should be particularly interesting to every woman, as I am going to embody in them some very worthwhile information on how to achieve beauty for your skin in summer, within the confines of your own boudoir, and without assistance from anyone else.

That Unsettled European Weather

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C KELLY

HOW LONG IS A HERO A HERO?

I am wondering what would have happened if Col. Lindbergh had remained in Europe, without making any diplomatic error, several weeks or months longer. Just how long could our enthusiasm over his return have been maintained at high pitch? Would he have been more of a hero or less so a month from now?

My guess is that no matter how much we admire his daring and modesty, we would be less excited and less demonstrative in our reception, somewhat in proportion to the number of days since his exploit. This seems especially likely, inasmuch as the romance and valor of his deed aroused our enthusiasm primarily through our emotions.

If we should be less excited over his return next August than we are now, then we would be expected to be still more calm over his return in, say, October. Which brings me to the question that I am puzzled over: Just how long would he have had to remain in Europe to return without any demonstration here at all? I wish somebody would figure that out!

"Even more important than weather itself to our business," a department store manager tells me, "is the weather forecast. If the weather man declares on Tuesday night or in Wednesday morning's paper that Wednesday will be rainy, and yet the sun stays out all day, we suffer almost as much loss of business as if it actually HAD rained. Women who were going shopping make their plans the night before, or in the morning, and having once given up the idea of going shopping because of probable bad weather, they do not change."

And right there is what all most of us. We are not quick enough at changing our plans when we face unexpected conditions.

The Theatre

By FLEET SMITH

NEW YORK, June 20.—It is only once in a blue moon that you run across one of those actors who so thoroughly and conscientiously enacts a role that he actually lives the part he is portraying, even in his private life. And when you do find one of these creatures, you usually find a truly great actor. After having seen a private showing of "The Way of All Flesh," Emil Jannings's first American-made film, which he has just completed for Paramount.

I made a few inquiries and learned that Jannings had so completely taken up the life of August Schilling, the role of the middle-aged German banker he portrays in "The Way of All Flesh," that Mrs. Jannings was forced to leave the California home and go to the seaside for the weeks the picture was being made. It strikes me that if a few men and women screen stars would take a tip from the marvelous piece of work Jannings has turned out in "The Way of All Flesh," and begin living their parts the screen story-teller and acting-pitch would be on a much higher plane within a short time.

There have been but a few of these actors who so thoroughly study their parts that they actually seem not to be acting, so simply and naturally do they carry on their work. Jannings is the only man on the screen in recent years who knows how to absorb every possibility in each part he plays. Among the women stars, Pola Negri strikes me as being about as painstaking and thorough in her preparation and characterization as any woman on the screen today. No better example of this could be had than Miss Negri's work in "Barbed Wire," which, as everyone knows, is taken from Hall Caine's "The Woman of Knockaloe." Miss Negri's pictorialization of Mona, the peasant girl, especially in some of the high dramatic points, was a positive inspiration.

Pola Negri, by the way, is back in Hollywood with her husband, Prince Midvian, of the principality of Georgia. He is a very likable fellow and is going to enter business in California while Miss Negri insists on being known as Pola Negri instead of Princess Midvian, goes on with her film work.

I dropped into Paramount offices the other day and found a staff of workers going through a lot of pictures and reading and checking a lot of votes. Since Jesse Lasky broadcast an appeal for a girl to play the part of Lorelei in the production of Anita Loos' "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," Paramount mail has been greatly enlarged. It is hard to tell who is going to get the role. Esther Ralston, Clara Bow, Josephine Dunn, Laura La Plante and a host of others have names have been sent to Paramount. Mr. Lasky sent a questionnaire recently to film directors throughout the country asking them to send in their choice for the part. Most of them at this writing, prefer Constance Talmadge. Paramount is awaiting with eager interest the result of a questionnaire sent to all members of the Lambs club in New York. Members of the Lambs were asked to make a selection. Work on the film is scheduled to start in the early fall.

Keeping HEALTHY

By Dr. A. F. Currier

AN ADDITION TO THE TREATMENT OF DIABETES

Diabetes is such a destructive disease that any addition of value to present methods of treatment must be welcomed by those who have diabetic patients under their care.

With the discovery of insulin, the question of treatment was for ever solved. There is no doubt about the enormous value of insulin in the treatment of diabetes, but it has its objectionable points. It is almost every other good thing that was ever discovered.

It is expensive, sometimes hard to get, must be taken continuously and in just the proper quantities or it becomes harmful instead of helpful and life saving, as it very frequently is. But every doctor knows and appreciates its inestimable value.

Now comes another substance, vouchered for by no less eminent authority on diabetes than Dr. Frederick M. Allen of Morris-town, N. J.

At a recent meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology, held at Rochester, N. Y., Dr. Allen described a substance called myrtilin, an alternative or addition to insulin which can be taken by mouth and not by injection into the tissues as insulin is introduced.

This substance was discovered by Dr. R. I. Wagner of the Morristown Psychiatric Institute and was obtained from the leaves of huckleberries.

It might be said to be still in the experimental stage for those who have used it do not know with positive assurance just what it is, though they think it may be a vitamin.

Drs. Allen and Wagner first conducted experiments with it upon diabetic dogs and it will be remembered that similar experiments were carried out in the discovery of insulin.

These experiments resulted favorably and it is said that further experimentation will probably lead to perfection in the methods of treatment. It had also been used on human beings with beneficial results but from the report which was given it would seem that it had not yet reached the stage when it could be given to the public and the profession. There are objections to launching a substance of so great potential importance before it has been thoroughly tried out, chiefly because of the hope it arouses in sufferers which may be followed by disappointment.

That was the well-known history of tuberculin, even though discovered by so great a scientist as Robert Koch.

It means a great deal, however, that myrtilin should be sponsored by a man of such great experience and unquestionable standing as Frederick Allen and we will await future developments with uncommon interest.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. Y.: My nose gets very dry inside, and a scab forms on the mucous membrane. If I keep it moist with any suitable application it does not trouble me. Also my ears itch and run and scabs form in them. What would you say was the matter?

Answer.—It is probably a form of eczema in both locations. If you have found a substance which gives you relief, why not continue to use it, and in both locations? An ointment of lanolin and boric acid will sometimes give great relief.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, June 20.—Mayor Walker has been complimented by famous tailors from London and Paris on the cut of his clothes. By one of them he was designated as "America's best dressed man."

But Mayor Walker dresses more in "the New York manner" than the average well-dressed New Yorker. The average well-dressed New Yorker takes his cue either from London or from the colleges in the matter of dress. Mayor Walker's tailor apparently takes his cue from Broadway—or the mayor does—and so the mayor wears pin-striped serges and closely woven materials, with rather tight fitting coats, usually single breasted, with two buttons and narrow, long lapels. The same type of suit, only in a more exaggerated form, is a pinch-back coat is almost the uniform of Broadway song and dance men.

Those who take their cue in dress from London, wear square-front vests, trousers pleated at the waist, coats with reinforced shoulders, tapering toward the waist, and made of goods that stay in press.

Those who take their cue from the colleges wear suits of chevilles, worsteds and tweeds, loose-fitting, usually light in color and with a "comfortable" appearance.

Michael Williams in the Commonwealth relates that Sinclair Lewis used to carry around a trunk full of plots, newspaper clippings and notes of conversations for his novels. Lewis had so many plots carefully noted down on index cards when he met Jack London in Carmel, California, in Lewis' early days as a writer that he sold ten or fifteen of them to London for ten dollars a plot. London was short of plots and Lewis, in those days, was short of cash. Out of the ten dollar plots bought from Lewis, London could write stories and sell them for $1,000 apiece.

Here and there: Lucien Estey and Justin Spafford were broke when they compiled a questionnaire book called "Me Another." They have made a fortune out of it. . . . Dorothy Parker, the poet, is up and about again after an illness. Her book of poems, "Enough Rope," is among the non-fiction best sellers, and deserves to be. . . . Texas Guinan spread out from the night club racket and put on a show called "The Palace of 1927." It proved to be a costly venture, drawing little patronage. . . . The higher you get in a New York office building the less distinct are the separate noises from the street, but instead they are blended and so form a continuous roar. . . . The term "racket" in New York means a sideline usually an easy way of making money. In Wall Street, for instance a broker's clerk may have a few private customers, for whom he trades not through the company he works for, but through another brokerage house. That is his racket. . . . On Broadway, it means any method of making money aside from one's regular trade, business or employment. . . . Something ought to be done about Robert Benchley. He is demoralizing. He has just published a new book, "The Early Worm." It is such a darn funny nonsense that it takes you away from all serious thought, and all serious endeavor; and that, as you know, is bad for the morale.

There is a fight on between two local dramatic critics and they have been calling each other names in their columns and threatening each other with punches in the nose. . . . The subway stations need repainting. They are dingy and dirty. The unpainted wooden floors of the platforms at the Times Square and Grand Central stations the subway shuttle have given the shuttle a temporary and unfinished look ever since it was constructed. . . . they call chill con carne on the bill of fares in some New York restaurants? I am fond of chill con carne. I ordered some. What they brought me was a dish of boiled rice, tomatoes and green onions. Wonder what they think "con carne" means? And there was not a trace of chill pepper in the concoction. I sent it back and got what I was represented to get.

There are two good places to get chill in New York, at Fornes on Fifty-second Street, and at the chill parlor just opened on East Forty-ninth Street just off Sixth Avenue. . . . The Automat is one of the best places to get good coffee. Except downtown, there are few restaurants where the coffee is good. . . . There are some new taxicabs on the streets which look like imported limousines. Their fare is the same as in most of the other cabs. Personally I like to ride in Hughie Roger's cab. It is a rattly hack that has been long in service, but Hughie is a careful driver and he always points out the former residences of millionaires of the 'Nineties which are now occupied by business houses on the avenue, and usually tells me some gossip about the people who formerly occupied them. And Hughie knows, because he used to drive a horse drawn cab and as he shook my hand said, "If I can ever be of service to you, let me know." I asked my friend what the chap meant by that. It seems that if I ever want to bust a fellow in the nose and had rather not take any chances, my friend will come around and muss the fellow up for me.

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"Write my memoirs? Never! I would place too many people in a bad light. I should have to tell the truth about many persons and events, which would be too cruel."—Georges Clemenceau, the "Tiger of France."

"The federal government has set an example, not alone to other governments in this country, but to other nations in the practice of economy. Extravagance may bring momentary pleasures and apparent benefit, but it creates a condition which is bound to affect the future adversely."—President Coolidge.

"I think that the President ought to call a special session to deal with the flood control legislation, reduction of the taxes and the formulation of real farm relief. The flood situation is a real emergency. Immediate attention, both for emergency relief to those who have suffered as the result of the floods and so that a plan of permanent flood protection may be inaugurated as soon as possible."—Senator Barkley, Kentucky.

"Europe offers a firstclass opportunity for the development of friendship and international peace. Twenty-century old Europe, separated by too many social, moral and economic barriers, must set aside from its earnings an enormous amount for debt settlement, while American citizens enjoy reduced taxes yearly. This is not due to the most powerful intellectualism or superior morality and laboring work, but is due to the lack of balance of the world's spiritual and material forces."—Etienne Fougere, French delegate to the International Rotary convention.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

Reserves Beat Bellbrook And Lead Buckeye League

RUSS PAYTON HURLS ABLY AND SHUTS OUT VISITORS IN STYLE

Fans Witness Pitching Duel—McMichaels In Good Form

Russ Payton had a slight edge on McMichaels in a slugging battle and the Reserves shut out Bellbrook 3 to 0 in the Washington Park matinee Sunday, assuming undisputed possession of first place in the Buckeye League as the Dayton Police lost to the Beavertown Reds 4 to 1.

In winning Sunday, Payton registered his third shutout victory of the season. It was also the ninth win for the Reserves in ten starts and by far the best game to date.

Both hurlers were in rare and exceedingly fine form and batters on the opposing teams were painfully helpless at all times.

Reserves garnered five bingles, including a slightly tainted home run by Tangeman, hard-hitting first sacker, while the visitors obtained one less hit.

Payton struck out nine batters and had perfect control, not walking a man. McMichaels fanned four and issued but one pass.

The Bellbrook pitcher began impressively by fanning the first three batters who faced him. In the second, however, Tangeman cracked out a long hit far over Gibbons' head, and the blow went for a homer when the right fielder failed to handle it cleanly.

The locals were then neatly blanked for four frames but chased in two runs across the register in the seventh with the aid of three foolies in the field. Cyphers was safe on the shortstop's fumble of his grounder and Rader obtained an infield single. The runners advanced a base on a passed ball. Weller popped out but Cyphers scored when Payton hit to Weaver and the third baseman made a bad throw to the plate, Rader taking third and the batter reaching first.

Payton stole second cleanly and Rader scored on a similar play when Johnson hit to Cramer and the first sacker made a wild peek home. Keifer and C. Scott then flied out.

Bellbrook had several good chances to score in the first four innings but the needed hit at the critical moment was never forthcoming. In the first Weaver was safe on Rader's error and went as far as third on a sacrifice and an out at first, but Payton put on speed and whiffed Davis for the third out.

With one out, Crowl and Wright singled in the second but Durnbaugh went far back for Cramer's long fly and Weller nipped Wright trying to steal second. McMichaels led off with a hit in the third but the next three batters were easy.

In the fourth with two gone, Crowl obtained his second hit of the day, a double, but Wright rolled to the box for the third out. Payton retired the visitors in order without a hit in the last five innings, except that one batter reached first on an error by Tangeman.

Crowl was the only man on either team to make more than one hit. He collected a single and double in three swings. Scott, Durnbaugh, Tangeman, Rader and Weller each hit safely once for the Reserves.

Reserves will play Beavertown next Sunday here and as the Reds beat the Police, a good game is looked for. The Sunday game was easily the fastest-played tilt of the season, taking only an hour and fifteen minutes to complete.

RESERVES MOVE TO FIRST POSITION IN BUCKEYE LOOP RACE

Reserves took first place in the Buckeye League Sunday, breaking a tie that has existed all season, by shutting out Bellbrook 3 to 0 while the Dayton Police were losing to the Beavertown Reds 4 to 1.

Beavertown both out and out-flied the cops. The winners made ten hits and fielded faultlessly behind the invincible pitching of Sherman, who yielded six hits and struck out eleven batters. Leeper, Police hurler, allowed ten hits and fanned twelve batters.

HOME BAND PLEASES BASEBALL FANS ON 40 AND 8 PROGRAM

The O. S. and S. O. Home Cadet Band, under leadership of Professor H. E. Seall, entertained thousands of fans with a number of selections during the baseball double-header of the Cincinnati Reds with Philadelphia at Redland Field Sunday afternoon.

Saturday was to be "Forty and Eight Day" at the ball park but rain forced postponement of the Brooklyn game and cancellation of plans for a celebration and parade at the field.

Instead, members of the society attended the Sunday twin bill and a delegation presented Eppa Rixey with flowers. The Red pitcher is the only Cincinnati player who is a member of the organization.

Saturday afternoon the band gave a band concert at the Cincinnati Club as a part of the society's promenade plans, and also will give a concert in Jamestown under auspices of Jamestown business men. Thursday night an open air band concert will probably be given in Xenia, donated to business men of the city in appreciation for services rendered during the past year.

The band had just returned from playing during a four-day convention at Canton, Tuesday night it will give a concert in Jamestown under auspices of Jamestown business men. Thursday night an open air band concert will probably be given in Xenia, donated to business men of the city in appreciation for services rendered during the past year.

CIRCUS EXHIBITS TO LARGE CROWDS

Rainy weather did not keep large crowds from attending both afternoon and evening performances of the Christy Bros. circus which exhibited at the Ringer show grounds, Cincinnati Ave., Saturday.

Circus visitors were pleased with both performances and amazed at the large number of animals carried. Performing animal troupes featured the exhibitions although there were aerial acrobats, equestrians and clown acrobats.

BOARD MEETS

Closing of the books for the fiscal year, and the discussion of routine business, were the only matters confronting the board of trustees, O. S. and S. O. Home, Saturday evening.

Judge J. M. Pugh, Columbus, who was appointed to the board three or four months ago, did not attend the meeting and has not attended a session of the board since his appointment. Home officials are at a loss to account for his absence.

HELEN OF TROY, IMPORTED

"The face that launched a thousand ships," according to Hollywood, was of the exact type owned in this day and age by Maria Corda, who was brought to America from Europe to play Helen in the film version of John Erskine's modernized classic, "The Private Life of Helen of Troy."

President Coolidge in the opinion of some close observers, is a very tired man and is embarking upon a vacation not a day too soon. There are those who think they detected fatigue in some of the president's most recent public addresses, although by common consent Mr. Coolidge was never happier in expression nor more buoyant in manner than on "Lindbergh Day." Even a man like the chief executive, who is often called worry-proof, yields to the wear and tear of White House duty. It is a grinding, relentless, unceasing drive of an existence that the president of the United States leads. Grave responsibility rests upon his shoulders every hour of the day. The next twelvemonth will lay particularly heavy burdens upon Calvin

Both his ankles were fractured, and so, he told the hospital attendants, was his love for Philomena. Falling out of love was his own idea, though, he insisted.

Coolidge. He will have an exacting congress on his hands, for one thing. Whether the president is to be a candidate for re-election, or not, he will be in the forefront of the 1928 campaign, as the official leader of the Republican party. For all these reasons, Mr. Coolidge has made no secret of his determination to get out of the Black Hills every inch of physical and mental benefit possible.

From the distressed Mississippi flood district comes one ray of humor, for the authenticity of which no other than Secretary Hoover is said to vouch. It is related that, in company with Red Cross relief officials, Hoover called upon a colored woman who had given birth to twin girls in a refuge camp. Doctors and nurses were busy administering treatment to ward off contagion. The dusky mother, when asked what she had christened her twins, replied: "Vaccine and Serum."

Over at Bolling field, the army air base near Washington, there are half a dozen especially trim-looking and confidence-inspiring planes, to which visitors' attention is usually drawn. They were pointed out to this observer the morning Colonel Lindbergh hopped off for the big noise in New York. "They're the ships in which the generals cruise," explained a husky young flying officer, "because they're the safest machines on the field. We call 'em 'sacred cows'."

New York university conferred an honorary LL.D. upon Secretary Kellogg the other day. The citation which accompanied the bestowal of the cap and gown by Chancellor Brown took cognizance, in the following terms, of the rough and rocky road which Kellogg has recently been traveling:

"You were born to high responsibilities, and they have crowded upon you throughout the years of your public life. In no one of those years have you been more beset with harassing perplexities and cares than in the twelvemonth through which we have just come. It has been your difficult task to shape and maintain, unimpaired a foreign policy that shall be strong in the present and wise for the future; that shall compel respect for our flag abroad, while satisfying, here at home, the desire and determination of our people that America shall still lead in the way to lasting peace.

Former Governor Frank C. Lowden, of Illinois, the principal cloud on the Coolidge horizon, will spend the summer on his estate in the Thousand Islands. He has invited a number of public men to be his guests on the St. Lawrence, mainly for the purpose of discussing agricultural politics. One of the members of congress who will visit Lowden is Representative Meyer Jacobstein, of the Rochester, N. Y., district. Jacobstein has come to be regarded as one of the foremost authorities on Capitol hill in the tangled realm of farm economics. He voted for the McNary-Haugen bill, although he does not consider it by any means an ideal solution of the rural problem. The Institute of Politics, at Williamstown, Mass., has invited the brilliant young Democratic congressman to discuss agriculture at this summer's round table in the Berkshires.

Once again a modest, but slightly capable, private citizen of the Republic becomes temporary master of the White House. He is Rudolph Forster, executive clerk of every administration beginning with and since that of William McKinley. Whenever McKinley, Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson or Harding left Washington for protracted periods, especially summer vacations, Forster was left behind in supreme charge of office matters at the Executive Mansion. He has functioned in that capacity for President Coolidge ever since 1923 and is on the job again now. No one begins to have a glimmer of the intimate knowledge of White House routine that Forster has at his fingertips. Many a president has acted on his advice. The word mistake is not in Forster's lexicon. He bulges with state secrets and is a past master at keeping them.

Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard, of Chestertown, Md., is the winner of the Woman's National Democratic club's 1928 slogan contest. The victorious suggestion reads: "Eight Years of Wall Street—Give Main Street a Chance." Mrs. Hubbard is one of the potent eastern shore. Now and then she's mentioned as a future candidate for governorship of Maryland.

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

The Rovin' Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

Oh! how shall we make our garden grow
With peas and beans all in a row?
"Let's plant a garden and raise carrots for the rabbits," suggested Patsy.

"And for ourselves," added Tag. "I like raw carrots with salt."

"If we could rig up some kind of stove, we could cook all kinds of things," said Marty.

"Oh, please let's do it," cried Betty Ann excitedly. "I'll promise to do all the cooking. Patsy and I will manage the table and dishes and things."

"You're a little ahead of the game, Betty Ann," laughed Marty. "We haven't planted the garden yet, but if you think it would be fun, I'll ask mother if she minds."

Everyone of the Ritzies was enthusiastic over the idea of having a garden of their own and when Mrs. Collins had given her consent, they didn't waste much time in getting it started.

"Let's make it round and put stones around the edge as a border," suggested Tag.

have all the fun you like, but don't really expect anything to grow in that yellow clay!"

This was indeed an unexpected blow. The garden was all spaded and raked ready to be planted and then came the news that nothing would grow in it. The Ritzies weren't ready to give up their plans for a garden just yet and so put their heads together to see what could be done about making over their little patch of clay.

"Let's put some other soil with it," suggested Rag. "Some sand or something."

"Things won't grow in sand," objected Marty.

"Oh, yes they will," corrected Patsy. "Don't you remember that mother started all of her geranium slips in sand?"

"So she did," agreed Marty. "It looks like we would have to rob Betty's sandpile."

Betty didn't care, she was so anxious to have a nice garden and so the boys carried a couple of shovels of sand over to the garden and mixed it up with clay.

him. If accepted, would carry him from Detroit on the Canadian border to New Orleans on the gulf coast, from San Francisco on the Pacific to Boston on the Atlantic. If the youth has his way, he undoubtedly will visit them all.

The tour however, will be arranged on the advice of Lindy's financial backers. He attended one conference last night at the hotel, and another at the home of Mrs. Knight, millionaire St. Louis. Besides the host, the conference included Harold M. Bixby, president of the St. Louis chamber of commerce, Major William B. Robertson, head of the air mail line on which "Slim" served as a pilot, and B. F. Mahoney of San Diego. They were to meet again today.

These backers of the air hero shared their deliberations with Lindy. They declined to discuss his plans for the future but said an announcement would be made some time this week.

It was learned though that Lindy will leave St. Louis Wednesday or Thursday although his destination was withheld. One report stated the air hero would fly back to Washington to confer with government experts over the technical descriptions written into the log of his trans-Atlantic flight.

Lindy will publish the log within a few weeks and his publishers were said to have urged him to complete the copy at once.

Lindy was concerned with another problem—the ultimate disposition of his precious plane. "The Spirit of St. Louis," it was suggested to him that he turn it over as an exhibit to the national museum.

in Washington but Lindy would not commit himself. "I can't go into that now," was his reply.

Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, mother of the hero, who shares honors with him here, was scheduled to return to Detroit today. Her future was shrouded with mystery as friends of Lindy were understood to have urged her to give up her job as a school teacher in Detroit and come to live with him in St. Louis. Mrs. Lindbergh, however, has signed a contract to continue as a teacher next year in the Cass Technical High School at Detroit and recently said she "intended to keep her word."

As for the youth's business future, Lindy made it rather plain that he intends to remain in aviation. In speaking to the 100,000 persons gathered in the open air at Forest Park Sunday, he said: "St. Louis is in a position to be the center of aviation in this country. With proper cooperation we can put St. Louis as the center of aviation in this country."

His use of the pronoun "we" in this instance was not taken to include his famous plane but rather as a reference to his St. Louis backers.

The air hero spent an active Sunday. In the forenoon, he visited the U. S. Veterans Hospital at Jefferson barracks, outside the city of St. Louis. In the afternoon, he flew his plane over the city and later attended the Forest Park celebration.

At night, he attended a municipal opera in the open air at Forest Park, which an audience of 12,000 cheered him. Other thousands, unable to get seats, stood outside to cheer.

Lindy became a full fledged colonel during the day. He received two commissions, one as a colonel in the U. S. army reserve corps from Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis, and another as a colonel in the Missouri national guard, from Governor Sam A. Baker.

The official functions here ended last night but Lindy has accepted an invitation to attend a dinner of the Industrial Club of St. Louis Tuesday night. This organization raised $1,000,000 to advertise St. Louis. After that, Lindy will be free to tour the country.

COMMENCEMENT AT ANTIOCH OPENS AT VESPER SERVICES

Commencement week at Antioch College opened Sunday evening with vesper services on the college campus, the Rev. Hugh I. Evans, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Dayton, delivering the sermon on the subject "The Inevitability of a Spiritual Life," before the 1927 graduating class.

The Rev. Mr. Evans was introduced by President Arthur E. Morgan, who later talked a few minutes on the subject. "Developing Purpose at Antioch College," in two parts, the Rev. Mr. Evans, the minister declared that "in even our materialistic world of today, thinking people are coming face to face with the need for a spiritual life and a need particularly for the message of Jesus Christ."

He concluded by saying: "Our most materialistic begin by saying they are agnostic, but in their search for some faith for which to cling, finally claim a belief in the mechanistic cause and effect, which a close analysis reveals as a hunger for filling up the void bringing with it a spiritual life as inevitable as life itself."

The baccalaureate services opened a week crammed with activities which will close Saturday with commencement exercises, when fifty-two students receive their diplomas. President Morgan will deliver the commencement address and Dean Philip Nash will distribute the diplomas.

DEFENDANT WINNER IN DECISION GIVEN BY APPEALS COURT

Action of a jury in Common Pleas Court in returning a verdict in favor of the defendant in a suit brought by the Greene County Lumber Co. against Laura Dunkle and others for recovery of a personal judgment against Laura Dunkle for material furnished in the erection of a house and to assert a mechanic's lien against the property, was affirmed by the Court of Appeals Thursday.

The case was tried by a jury and resulted in a verdict for the defendant signed by nine members of the jury. December 1 the case was again heard and the court found in her favor, dismissing the petition.

Regarding the claim of the personal liability of Laura Dunkle, the Appeals Court declared the action was one at law and would not be appealable to the Court of Appeals.

The first cause of action in the amended petition of the lumber company involves the equitable liability of Laura S. Dunkle for materials furnished to her contractor and for which the lumber firm filed papers necessary to create a mechanic's lien.

These papers were filed within sixty days after January 14, 1927, and depended for the validity of the lien, upon whether an item furnished January 14, was a valid item within the meaning of the mechanic's lien law, and whether the furnishing of a certain lock January 14 operated to extend the time for filing of the lien to a period sixty days from that date.

The lock was valued at ninety cents. The higher court commented: "Upon consideration of the evidence as to the delivery of the lock January 14, we cannot escape the conclusion it was furnished expressly for the purpose of extending the lien and was furnished solely upon the order of J. W. Kendrick, the contractor, the contractor, at the instance of the lumber company. At that time the contractor had at least temporarily abandoned the work."

Attorneys F. L. Johnson and C. L. Darlington represented the lumber company and attorneys J. C. and L. T. Marshall, the defendant, Laura Dunkle.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Philip Wynne Tracy IV has had a childish engagement with Natalie Jones. Becoming interested in Lyra Hilliard, an old friend of his mother's, he soon finds he is falling in love with her.

Philip Tracy and Rodney Maxwell are among the first to enlist in the World war.

Phil's regiment is sent to the front soon after arriving in France, and Phil is wounded while on a dangerous mission. Rod is killed trying to save his friend and Phil receives the cross de guerre for bravery.

While recovering in the south of France, armistice is declared and Phil, meeting certain requirements, is awarded a scholarship in a French university and returns to Paris.

His mother, not having heard from him for months, goes to France to hunt him, and Major Aukland, who is devoted to Anne Tracy, accompanies her. Unexpectedly, she comes face to face with her son.

The next morning at breakfast Phil and his mother talk things over and to her consternation Mrs. Tracy learns that Phil intends to marry a French divorcee with a four-year-old child. She collapses as Phil leaves her, and Major Aukland, who has come to take her out, hearing her sobs, walks into the room.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XLVI

DOWN TO EARTH AGAIN

THAT boy of yours, Anne, certainly takes after his father. He gets in and out of love with great celerity and dispatch. All your suspicions seem to agree with what he tells you from time to time."

Mrs. Tracy had bathed her tear-swollen face and slightly lightened the tint of her nose with powder, and now, partially composed, was sitting with her back to the light, facing Major Aukland.

"Are you sure you understood Philip, my dear?"

"I could not mistake him. He said that he did not want to go back to the States ever—and when I taxed him with being interested in some woman, he acknowledged I was right. Oh, John, what shall I do?"

"Marry me," answered Major Aukland promptly.

"Don't joke about it, John. It's too serious a matter."

"I never was more serious in my life, Anne."

"But don't you see that is not a solution? I cannot leave Philip over here while I go back to America. Surely you can understand that after what you saw yesterday."

"I have no objection to living in France, or Timbuctoo, provided you are there, dear," asserted John Aukland.

"Neither does that help, John. The truth of the matter is that I do not want Philip to stay in France. With the money that his grandmother left him and what will be his after I am gone—combined with his wife's fortune, he can live a life of ease here, but with the great American background that he has, it would seem like the betrayal of his ancestors to be an alien to his own land."

"Is her money inherited?"

"She had before the war one of the largest silk factories in France. It has been pretty badly shot to pieces, but I am sure that it can be quickly restored," Mrs. Tracy explained.

"Well, that will certainly give Philip something to do."

"But don't you understand, John, that Philip's ancestors have all been professional men—lawyers, architects and surgeons? Just before the war he said he intended to follow his father and grandfather in the law."

"Many a boy, Anne, has pulled aloof from what his forefathers have done."

"John Aukland, are you trying to plead Philip's cause?"

"No, Anne dear, I'm afraid I am just trying to help my own," answered the major honestly. "However, I will not do that any longer. The worst thing about this whole affair is that the lady in question is of a different race—she is 10 years older than Philip, who is too young to know his own mind—and that she has a child four years old."

"That's the whole thing in a nutshell, John. In fifteen years, Philip would probably be making love to his wife's daughter."

John Aukland grinned. "I don't think the marriage would last that long—not with a Tracy," he comforted.

"I have no objection to living in France or Timbuctoo, provided you are there, dear."

"I DON'T know about that, John," said Anne Tracy, who refused to see any light in the situation. "Philip has a great streak of loyalty in his make-up."

"What about Natalie?" Major Aukland asked rather cruelly.

"I don't think he has ever felt bound to Natalie. You see, she has always been too proud to let him think he was under any love obligations to her. I am sure he got that impression from her last letter. John, I was that way with Philip's father, and I think that is why I could not keep him. The Tracys have always thought more of their word—spoken or implied—than of their sexual faithfulness to the women who loved them. Anyway, it's on the knees of the gods."

"Come on, John, let's go over to the Louvre. I want to look again at that smile on the face of 'Mona Lisa.' If it is sincere, that woman had suffered, and in suffering had learned how to laugh at all the world, including herself. Perhaps I'll have to take a leaf out of her book soon."

"She was a great girl, Anne, but I don't think we have time to do that. Phil will be coming in a few minutes, and I am going to take you to Armenteville to dinner."

"That night the major never batted an eyelash when he was cut by some of the other A. E. F. officers because he was dining in a public restaurant with an enlisted man."

Not a word was said about this, but Anne was extremely grateful. Strange as it may seem, however, Phil rather resented the fact that Major Aukland made a regimental faux pas seemingly with eager gladness because he knew it would please the woman he loved. In time of peace, at least, he put her before regimental red tape.

The days that had dragged on leaden feet while Phil was away from her, now rushed past so swiftly that Anne did not know where they went. She met many of her friends in Paris. She made new friends in both the American and French legation sets.

Pat had called upon her, and she had returned the call with ceremony. She had met Pat's mother and sensed immediately that she was quite as much opposed to Philip's marrying her daughter as Anne was opposed to Pat marrying her son.

He, however, never made any reference to his romance, but at least one evening each week she was left to the tender mercies of Major Aukland, who always had some gorgeous and amusing entertainment for her.

Late spring in Paris, than which nothing on this earth can be more beautiful, found everything on exactly the same footing as it was when she arrived in France.

Anne and Philip had unfortunately dropped from that plane of emotional fervor to which they rose on their first meeting. They had become just everyday mother and son. Down in the heart of each there still remained the feeling that their great love for each other was there, but it was not to be brought out in everyday life.

Anne, on the advice of Major

Aukland, had been particularly nice to Pat. She had dined at her home, and had her to dine at the different fashionable cafes.

PHIL was at times moody and at times very gay. Anne could not help seeing the growing antagonism between him and Major Aukland. This was especially pronounced that day when, after much pleading, Mrs. Tracy had persuaded Philip to go to Chateau Thierry with her to see the place where he had swam the Marne. Philip had absolutely declined to make the trip if Major Aukland was to be of the party.

"I will not have that old wind-bag asking me questions. I don't want to live it all over again, God knows. It will be bad enough to see the place where Rod saved my worthless life, without describing it to any damned stranger."

Philip and his mother set out alone. The boy, who like all the young soldiers, had never said much about the months of hardships which he had passed through, was particularly silent all the way up to Chateau Thierry.

They neared the historic river. Phil began to show a little excitement. He stretched his neck and looked about the familiar place. As they drove along beside the Marne, which was sluggishly winding its way through the blackened earth banks, he pointed out here and there a spot which the Americans had held.

Suddenly he rose and stood in the open motor. "There it is, Mother!" He pulled her up beside him. "There it is!" To her stopped and exclaimed wonderingly, "Why, how narrow it is!"

Anne Tracy threw her arms about her son's neck and laughed and cried, while he explained that on the night when he was swimming amid a perfect hail of machine gun bullets, it had seemed as wide as the Atlantic ocean.

Phil had made the chauffeur stop the motor. He and his mother got out. Presently she saw him fall on his knees and drop his face almost to the turf. "Rod, Rod," he whispered. "I haven't forgotten, old man, and I'm very lonely for you. No one can fill your place."

Anne stepped back a little. She knew that even a mother had no right to come between this communion of two souls.

All the way back hardly a word was said, but when they reached the hotel, Philip found a "Petit Bleu." After reading it he said: "Mother, can you bring your man Friday around here tonight?"

"Phil, I will not let you speak in that way of Major Aukland. Have you been called out? If so, you need not be afraid of leaving me by myself. I have some letters to write and I will do them this evening."

"By the way, I see that the boys who are down here at the Sorbonne will be sailing home in about six weeks. If you are thinking of being discharged in France, you had better put in your application."

BYRD POSTPONES ATLANTIC FLIGHT

WILE SAYS:

New Career Man
Cal Is Tired
Honors Kellogg
Lowden Busy

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Another "career diplomat" despite the shot which Vice President Dawes has just taken at that taste—is understood to be slated for an important promotion. He is Nelson T. Johnson, now chief of the Far Eastern division in the state department, and the post to which it is reported that President Coolidge shortly will elevate him is an assistant secretaryship of state. The position will become vacant with the impending transfer of Colonel Robert E. Olds to the undersecretaryship of state, now held by Joseph C. Grew, ambassador-designate to Turkey. Mr. Johnson is one of the United States' foremost authorities on China and the Far East. He is a native of Washington, D. C., but claims Oklahoma as his residence. Johnson this summer is completing his twentieth successive year in the foreign service.

AUSTRIA WELCOMES AMERICAN AIRMEN; VISIT PRAGUE NEXT

Premier And Mayor Of Vienna Receive Distance Aces

VIENNA, June 20.—Under an escort of mounted police and hailed by admiring throngs the two American airmen, Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, drove through the streets of Vienna in state today.

Accompanied by United States Minister Washburn the two fliers went to the governmental palace where they were received in audience by Premier Seipel, who gave them a warm greeting in the name of the Austrian government.

Mayor Seitz of Vienna entertains the fliers at an official dinner to-night and tomorrow President Hainisch will entertain them at luncheon, presenting each of them with a golden medal "for service."

On Wednesday the fliers will be entertained with a tea at the American legation.

On Thursday Chamberlin and Levine will fly to Prague, where President Masaryk has postponed his vacation in order to receive them.

Mrs. Chamberlin and Mrs. Levine remained at their hotels today, resting and recuperating from their strenuous flight from Berlin yesterday.

MAIMED VETERANS ATTEND SESSIONS

EL PASO, Tex., June 20.—Maimed men of the World War from all parts of the country assembled here today for the seventh national convention of the disabled American veterans.

President Coolidge sent a message from his summer home in the Black Hills of South Dakota, in which he praised the work the organization has done "to bring about the present satisfactory program of governmental relief."

"Sympathetically have you considered and zealously have you supported their needs," the president said. "The government gladly has recognized its obligations to its disabled veterans and their dependents. It has obtained generous and humane legislation for their benefit. Through the liberal interpretation and application of these laws it has been possible to extend to many thousands the financial and physical relief so much needed."

RACER IS KILLED

BRAZIL, Ind., June 20.—Heavy dust at the Sunflower race track was blamed for the tragedy in the first five mile elimination automobile race in which the car of Gerald Bush, 31, of Iowa City, Iowa, crashed into two other cars and then plunged into the spectators.

Bush was killed and three spectators were injured.

DIES AT WHEEL

COLUMBUS, O., June 20.—The second death of an automobile driver here from heart disease, as he piloted a machine in crowded traffic, occurred when Joseph R. Bigler, 30, drove his car to the curb and fell dead. Another driver died under similar circumstances Saturday.

LINDBERGH TO FOLLOW AIR GAME

COMMERCIAL LINES OVER ATLANTIC TO OCCUPY HIS FUTURE

Will Visit Many Cities
Soon—Tour Not
Arranged

ST. LOUIS, June 20.—Turning aside from public functions and popular acclaim, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh today began planning his business future and an aerial tour of the country in the interest of aviation.

While offers, involving millions of dollars and a variety of business opportunities, have been showered upon America's air idol, it was definitely learned that he intends to link his future to commercial aviation. His closest associates revealed that Lindbergh now plans to center his business activities on the development of trans-Atlantic commercial air lines, with St. Louis as a hub. He will make his headquarters in St. Louis too, the city which he frequently has described as his "home."

The first steps on the air king's scheduled tour of the country will be announced in a few days. He will accept as many as he humanly can of the fifty invitations given him to visit different cities, it was said. His tentative route will be arranged too so as to permit him to fly over the maximum number of cities and towns in order that the greatest possible number of people will be able to see his plane in flight if they cannot get a glimpse of the hero in person.

Lindbergh was reported anxious to visit all sections of the country. The invitations already extended

PILOT POWDERS NOSE-WHILE IN MID-AIR

VIENNA, June 20.—Triumphal tours are not all joy. Charles A. Levine and Mrs. Clarence A. Chamberlin realize that today.

Mrs. Chamberlin, trailing her husband in his flight from Berlin to Vienna, was desperately ill. While flying from Berlin to Munich in a commercial plane she noticed that her pilot was constantly powdering his nose. That convinced her the pilot was not a fit person to fly with and she changed planes, but the second pilot, although not given to powdering his nose, failed to prevent Mrs. Chamberlin from suffering from aerial nausea to such an extent that she was taken to a field hospital on her arrival in Vienna, but quickly recovered.

Levine still suffers from painful bruises suffered in Munich. He was in danger of being trampled by enthusiastic mobs when an American correspondent picked him up and threw him into an automobile.

NOBEL BLAMED FOR ANTI-SOVIET PLOTS

MOSCOW, June 20.—The semi-official newspaper Izvestia created a sensation today by publishing charges that Gustav Nobel, descendant of the Nobel peace prize founder, has supported plots to assassinate Bukharin, Tchitcherin, Rakovskii and other Russian leaders.

Izvestia published what purported to be a confession signed by George Elvengren, recently executed, in which Elvengren asserted that Nobel had given him 50,000 francs in Paris in 1926 to "liquidate Soviet leaders." The alleged confession stated that Nobel hoped to regain Russian oil field properties through the overthrow of the Soviet government.

COLUMBUS, O., June 20.—The 300 Columbus pastors opposed to Sunday operation of skating rinks cited by a minister's committee before city council, does not include Rev. Mollay H. He told his congregation, "The church can never win people by setting itself against everything pleasant, Sunday or no Sunday," the minister declared.

COOLIDGE WESTERN VISIT MAY BRING FORTH FARM RELIEF BILL

President Winning Converts To His Stand On McNary—Haugen Bill—Plans To Draft Satisfactory Bill While On Vacation

RAPID CITY, S. D., June 20.—President Coolidge, according to all indications, will leave the Black Hills of South Dakota this fall with a draft of a farm relief bill in his pocket, which will satisfy a great number of the farmers of the West, or at least be of such a nature as to be palatable.

Summering here in the heart of the region that fought so vigorously for the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill with its equalization fee and alleged "price-fixing" feature, the president already apparently has made long strides toward winning over the western agrarians.

"Why not," say a number of South Dakotans who manifestly are elated over Mr. Coolidge's presence in the Black Hills. "I never was for the McNary-Haugen bill." And there more cautious colleagues assert that at the time they were desperate and thought that nothing else having done any good, it was worth a chance.

Perhaps the first major convert to the administration viewpoint is Senator Norbeck. The South Dakota political leader voted for the McNary-Haugen bill, but the president's decision to summer here probably will make it difficult for him to oppose the Coolidge program in the next session of congress.

Before the season is over, Mr. Coolidge will have conferred with a number of agricultural leaders. He made it known last week at the temporary executive offices that he looked forward to quite a few meetings on the subject of farm relief.

The importance of formulating an acceptable compromise farm program has been impressed on the president quite forcibly. Just before his departure from Wash-

So said Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of Governor Trumbull of Connecticut, here today to act as a bridesmaid for Miss Annamie L. Houston.

"It would be just perfect if he were here, too," declared

CONGRESS WILL ASK APPROVAL OF LARGE REDUCTION IS SAID

Experts Preparing Summary To Give Secretary Mellon

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Congress will hand the American people a Christmas present in the form of a tax cut of about $300,000,000 next December with the sanction of the treasury department, treasury officials predicted today.

While no definite announcement is expected before Secretary of the Treasury Mellon returns from a European trip in the fall, it is certain that a substantial cut will be approved.

Under-Secretary Ogden L. Mills and a corps of experts will study the tax situation during Mellon's absence and will have a report upon which the secretary will base his annual report to congress by September.

Income tax payments for the fiscal year ending June 30, under the 1926 revenue act, will exceed those in 1925, under the much higher rates of the 1925 law by nearly $500,000,000, experts predicted. This remarkable showing is in spite of the reduction of the tax burden by nearly $400,000,000 in the 1926 law.

The 1927 income tax collections, according to today's treasury figures, will pass $2,225,000,000 as compared to $1,952,000,000 during the first year's application of the present law.

While the small taxpayer is expected to get little direct benefit from the contemplated reduction, indirectly, according to officials, the entire population, whether or not taxpayers, will profit through a reduced overhead of general business.

Preliminary plans of the treasury look to a probable cut of one per cent in the corporation tax, a substantial reduction in the maximum surtaxes and the elimination of most of the remaining war taxes. A simplification of some provisions of the revenue act is contemplated. In virtually all classes of income the government's revenue will be greater in 1927 than in any normal year in history. Customs collections are expected to go over $601,000,000, while all revenue will pass the $4,000,000,000 mark.

The treasury will find its vaults at the close of the year with at least $600,000,000 more than is needed for operating expenses, all of which will be devoted to a record slash over $1,000,000,000 in the public debt, with a correspondingly heavy cut in interest costs.

SOJOURNERS MEET

CLEVELAND, O., June 20.—The National Sojourners Club, a Masonic order of army, navy and marine corps officers, opens its seventh annual convention here today. Business sessions will occupy attention of delegates Monday and Tuesday. The formal banquet and military ball will be held Tuesday evening.

RUSSIAN AVIATRIX PLANS TO FLY FROM NEW YORK TO EUROPE

NEW YORK, June 20.—Inspired by the achievement of Lindbergh, a woman—Madame Lubo Philipp, Russian aviatrix—plans to fly across the Atlantic Ocean within three weeks, she said today.

Rome is her goal, and she will fly alone.

"What a man can do a woman can do," she said. "I am confident I can make it."

She is a slender little woman of grace and daintiness. She made some 3,000 flights, many of them on the Russian front, during the war. She was granted her international pilot's license in Russia in November, 1911. A year later she broke all records of that time for altitude by women flyers, rising 8,000 feet and descending in six and one-half minutes.

"I am not a stunt flyer," she said. "I have flown more than 3,000 times and more than 3,500 hours without accident. I have been waiting to make a trans-Atlantic flight for a long time."

Madame Philipp became widely known for a Berlin-to-Paris flight in 1913 under her maiden name of Lubo Galanskikoff.

Her representative, Captain H. C. Malnes, said today that ample financial backing had been provided for her trans-Atlantic flight, that a plane is on the way to a landing field near New York, and that by July 10 the flight can be started.

WELL-TO-DO SPINSTER HELD IN ALLEGED PLOT TO KILL THREE

Declare Woman And Her Maid Were In Conspiracy To Kill Sister And Her Family—New Brunswick Mystery

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 20.—Further evidence to substantiate the fantastic and amazing story of a plot to kill a family of three, is being sought by the authorities today as Miss Bessie Morse, aged 40, and well to do, was released upon $7,000 bail. The bail was furnished by Miss Morse's 84-year-old father, a wealthy land owner of Prospect Plains.

Miss Morse and her negro maid, Mamie Todd, thirty-one, are charged with conspiracy to murder. The charge was made after County Detective David declared before Judge Kirkpatrick that evidence had been obtained to connect them with a plot to kill Miss Morse's sister, Mrs. Grace Dey, her husband, Elmer, and their adopted son, Raymond, seventeen.

The original plan, it is alleged, was to kill Miss Morse's father and mother. Her mother, Mrs. Catherine Morse, died of natural causes on April 24.

Miss Morse denies all charges and has engaged Freeman Woodbridge, of New Brunswick, to defend her.

The culmination of several weeks work by Detective David and his two aides, in which they posed as gunmen, came Friday with the arrest of Mamie Todd. Saturday, Miss Morse was arrested.

VOLUNTEER UNIT TO ENFORCE DRY LAW IS FORMED IN CAPITAL

Former Pastor To Harding Head Of Dry "Snoopers"

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Led by the Rev. Wm. S. Abernethy, pastor to the late President Harding, two thousand capital residents formed themselves today into a volunteer prohibition enforcement unit. Their object is to inform police and dry agents of liquor law violations.

"Our enemies," said Abernethy, "can call us cellar snoopers or anything they like. We mean business. We mean to clean up Washington. Of all the places in the country, surely Washington should observe the law."

Chief of Police Hesse attended the mass meeting which sponsored the dry volunteer work. He said the police would be glad of assistance, but warned the volunteers against being over zealous.

"Innocent persons must not be subjected to embarrassment and persecution," he warned. "Mere suspicion is not sufficient for a raid."

The Rev. George M. Diffenderfer declared that recently only policemen known to be dry had been pushed ahead in the promotion lists.

"The powers that have been told," he said, "that if you appoint anyone who is not a dry you do so at your own risk." He did not identify "the powers."

VATICAN MAY MOVE FOR CHINESE PEACE ENCYCLICAL SAYS

Pope Deplores Civil War—Commends Church In Mexico

ROME, June 20.—Possible attempts by the vatican to end the civil war in China, were hinted at today by the Pope in an encyclical to the consistory now in session.

The Pope devoted most of the encyclical to the Chinese warfare, to praise of the churchmen of Mexico for their attitude in the religious controversy there. He also made references to the French nationalists of the action française.

After deploring the horrors of the Chinese civil war, the Pope expressed the opinion that these horrors are due less to the Chinese people, whom he described as peace loving, than to "imported subversive doctrines."

Reaffirming the vatican's love and regard for the ancient nation of China, the Pope praised the missionaries and Christians for their faithful service in China, and intimated that he is now considering launching a peace appeal to end the warfare.

Turning to the religious controversy in Mexico, the Pope declared the "shedding of blood for religious liberty and the deeds of the bishops, the clergy and the brethren are among the illustrious deeds in the history of the church."

The Episcopate of the United States also came in for papal praise in connection with the Mexican controversy, the Pope declaring that the American Episcopate is doing its best to illuminate world opinion regarding the conditions of the Catholic Church in Mexico.

Throughout the entire encyclical there was a plea for peace and prayers that troubled conditions now existent may soon pass away.

KENTUCKY GUN PLAY CLAIMS THREE DEAD

WINCHESTER, Ky., June 20.—Three are dead, and another reported dying here today, as the result of week-end gun play in Clark County.

Charles Abner, 25, and Mrs. Lucy Webster, 27, were killed, and James Palmer, 35, perhaps fatally shot in a battle in the yard of R. L. Lovings.

According to police, Abner and Palmer, with the latter's father, Austin, were teasing the children in Lovings' yard. The men were warned to leave, it is said, when James Palmer opened fire, missing Lovings and killing his daughter, Mrs. Webster. Lovings returned the fire, according to report, killing Abner and wounding Palmer.

Virgil Parker, 37, farmer, was shot and killed, it is reported by his stepdaughter, Nettie Irwin, 16, when he threatened his family Saturday night.

PLANE CRASHES

SISTERVILLE, W. Va., June 20.—An airplane manned by Leo Terletzky and Charles Prohinsie, both of New York, was wrecked in making a landing near New-Martinsville, W. Va., late Sunday, while enroute from Troy, O., to New York. The fliers got off their course, attempted to land in a wheat field to ascertain directions, and the ship plunged nose first into the soft mud. Neither man was injured.

NAVAL FLYER HOPES TO LAUNCH ATTEMPT TUESDAY AT SUNSET

Will Start at Night To Reach Paris In Daytime

NEW YORK, June 20.—Commander Richard E. Byrd hopes that weather conditions will permit him to hop off for Paris tomorrow evening, or, at the latest, Wednesday.

He wants to take off at sunset or early in the morning as Lindbergh and Chamberlin did. Early morning had been considered the best time for the hop-off because of atmospheric conditions, but Byrd pointed out that by leaving about six in the evening he could land in Europe in daytime.

Byrd said today that he will seek an air lane across the Atlantic which will afford the maximum in speed with the greatest margin of safety. Some day this course may be the every-day air route to Europe.

The huge three-motored plane America has been gone over thoroughly and is ready for the trip. Members of Byrd's crew, Bert Acosta, the pilot and Lieut. G. O. Noville, the engineer, are waiting impatiently for the time for the take off. The name of the fourth person who may make the trip has not been revealed although it is reported he will be Bernt Balchen, formerly of the Norwegian navy.

Unfavorable weather still prevails over the Atlantic. There are headwinds from New York to Newfoundland and from Newfoundland to mid-ocean. From that point to Ireland storms are raging.

Everything on this trip will be done on a scientific basis. Byrd will explore the various air lanes over the Atlantic with the idea of determining which one is the best. He will have all the instruments which Lindbergh had, including the earth inductor compass, and several more, the most important of which is the bubble sextant, by means of which the exact position of the plane may be determined and plotted on the chart.

"I hope to learn to some extent the quickest and safest course to Europe," said Byrd. "There are not necessarily the same.

"The quickest course may be the southern end of a low area, or area of storm, where a strong westerly wind would blow the plane along at high speed. Such a course however, might be dangerous. "It would be of great scientific value to learn more about the weather conditions that prevail above the surface of the ocean on the edges of the low pressure areas."

Whether Byrd will be satisfied with a hop to Paris, without going further, was a matter of conjecture today. The belief persists that he will attempt something more spectacular although Byrd says his original plans have not been changed. It is reported that when Byrd gets to Paris he will make another take-off—perhaps to some other large city, or back to America.

"Nothing will be decided until after we get Paris," said Byrd.

PROPOSAL TO CHECK NAVY COMPETITION BEFORE CONFERENCE

American Delegates Offer Plan For 5-5-3 Ratio

GENEVA, June 20.—A concrete proposal designed to eliminate the last vestige of naval competition between the great powers, was laid before the Geneva arms conference today by the American delegation.

The American program, tolled down, was that the 5-5-3 ratio of capital ship strength, established at the Washington conference six years ago, be extended to cover all remaining classes of fighting craft.

GENEVA June 20.—Japan will oppose the application of the 5-5-3 ratio to auxiliary vessels and if the United States presses such a proposal in the tripartite naval conference which opens here today, Japan will reserve the right to raise the question of naval bases, and will particularly suggest restrictions regarding the bases at Hawaii and Singapore, it was learned today.

Japan will agree with the United States in opposing any reduction in the maximum tonnage of capital ships, a suggestion which is expected to come from Great Britain. Furthermore Japan will support the French contention that small ships, for purposes of disarmament, should be divided only into two categories, surface craft and submarines.

ODD FELLOWS MEET

WOOSTER, O., June 20.—The Grand Lodge of the I. O. O. F. opens its 95th annual convention here today, continuing through June 24. About 6,000 visitors are expected. Delegates from approximately seventy-five lodges will attend.

BEAVER HIGH SCHOOL

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION MEETS

One hundred and fifty members of the Beaver High School Alumni Association held their annual reunion at the K. of P. Hall, Alpha, Friday evening.

Attorney W. L. Miller, Xenia, gave the address of the evening. During his remarks, he brought before the association the matter of the improvement made upon the hall this spring. This improvement gives the community a much better and more commodious place in which to hold public gatherings, and was made possible by public subscription. All the labor was donated. The alumni members were given the opportunity of making pledges to help pay the cost of material purchased and a nice sum was realized.

Mrs. P. H. Flynn was elected president of the association. Stephen Steadman was elected vice president; Earl Short, secretary and Miss June Thompson, treasurer.

During the banquet, several appropriate numbers were rendered by the Beaver Creek Orchestra, directed by Prof. W. R. Sayre. Attorney Otto Kelter, Dayton, acted as toastmaster during the after dinner program.

The Rev. Mr. Leeming pronounced the invocation, and Stephen Steadman gave the address of welcome. Kenneth Hawker responded and his talk was followed by a duet by Mrs. Ray Parsons and Mrs. Anna Herr. Four toasts were given. Mrs. Gladys Ater having as her subject "Light," and Mr. Mark "The Capturator," Mrs. Martha Bradford, "The Engine," and Earl Short, "The Ignition." Mr. Grindle gave a violin solo.

LINDBERGH'S EXAMPLE TO YOUTH PROGRAM SUBJECT.
Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, transatlantic flier, and the example he set to the youth of the nation by his deed, was the subject of talks by Miss Mary Ervin, world secretary of the Loyal Temperance Legion and Mrs. Carrie Platter, president of the Greene County W. YOUTH DETAINED BY

POLICE AFTER GIRL

BECOMES ILL HERE

Arthur Vance, 22, is being detained at Police Headquarters while a further investigation is made concerning the mysterious illness of Lydia Allen, 23, girl friend of Vance, who is seriously ill at her home on Chestnut St.

Patrolman Fred Jones and Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, arrested Vance early Monday morning, after what was presumably an all night party.

The youth said he procured a bottle containing four ounces of spirits of peppermint, at her request. The preparation contains 85 per cent alcohol.

Police think the girl drank a greater part of the liquid and it apparently affected her in such a manner as to interfere with her speech. Dr. A. D. DeHaven was called on the case and the girl was removed from the home of Joseph Dudley, Gladys Ave., where she had been taken by the boy, to her home, Monday.

Pending the outcome of her condition, Vance is being held at Police Headquarters on an old fine, which he has never paid.

BILIOUS? DON'T BE!
Biliousness is a symptom, not a disease. A sour, sick, belching, gassy stomach gets that way because of neglected constipation. Ordinary laxatives don't seem to help much, because the liver, the stomach, the spleen, and the intestines, all have to be aided. Constipation slows up the function of and interferes even with the brain's activity.

Blackburn's Cocoa-Royal Pills arouse the liver, tone up the stomach and intestines, stimulate the glandular secretions, in a pleasant, perfect way. When the internal organs function regularly, away goes biliousness, sour stomach, and indigestion.

Have you a throbbing at the temples, a bad taste in the mouth, halitosis (unpleasant breath), sour, bilious stomach, dark rings under the eyes and an irritable don't-care-languor? Take Blackburn's Cocoa-Royal Pills. Wake up your ambition and energy and feel good every day. In less than a dozen hours you will be on the "wellville" road. Forty-five pills—50 cts.—at all drugstores.

Reserves Beat Bellbrook And Lead Buckeye League

RUSS PAYTON HURLS ABLY AND SHUTS OUT VISITORS IN STYLE

Fans Witness Pitching Duel—McMichaels In Good Form

Russ Payton had a slight edge on McMichaels in a slab battle and the Reserves shut out Bellbrook 3 to 0. In the Washington Park matinee Sunday, assuming undisputed possession of first place in the Buckeye League as the Dayton Police lost to the Beavertown Reds 4 to 1.

In winning Sunday, Payton registered his third shutout victory of the season. It was also the ninth win for the Reserves in ten starts and by far the best game to date.

Both hurlers were in rare and exceedingly fine form and batters on the opposing teams were painfully helpless at all times.

Reserves garnered five bingles, including a slightly tainted home run by Tangeman, hard-hitting first sacker, while the visitors obtained one less hit.

Payton struck out nine batters and had perfect control, not walking a man. McMichaels fanned four and issued but one pass.

The Bellbrook pitcher began impressively by fanning the first three batters who faced him. In the second, however, Tangeman cracked out a long hit far over Gibbons' head, and the blow went for a homer when the right fielder failed to handle it cleanly.

The locals were then neatly blanked for four frames but chased two runs across the register in the seventh with the aid of three fouls in the field. Cyphers was safe on the shortstop's fumble of his grounder and Rader obtained an infield single. The runners advanced a base on a passed ball. Weller popped out but Cyphers scored when the third baseman made a bad throw to the plate, Rader taking third and the batter reaching first.

Payton stole second cleanly and Rader scored on a similar play when Johnson hit to Cramer and the first sacker made a wild peg home. Kelfer and C. Scott then fled out.

Bellbrook had several good chances to score in the first four innings but the needed hit at the critical moment was never forthcoming. In the first Weaver was safe on Rader's error and went as far as third on a sacrifice and an out at first, but Payton put on speed and whiffed Davis for the third out.

With one out, Crowl and Wright singled in the second but Durnbaugh went far back for Cramer's long fly and Weller nipped Wright trying to steal second. McMichaels led off at first, but in the third but the next three batters were easy. In the fourth with two gone, Crowl obtained his second hit of the day, a double, but Wright rolled to the box for the third out. Payton retired the visitors in order without a hit in the last five innings, except that one batter reached first on an error by Tangeman.

Crowl was the only man on either team to make more than one hit. He collected a single and double in three swings. Scott, Durnbaugh, Tangeman, Rader and Weller each hit safely once for the Reserves.

Reserves will play Beavertown next Sunday here and as the Reds beat the Police, a good game is looked for. The Sunday game was easily the fastest-played tilt of the season, taking only an hour and fifteen minutes to complete.

Reserves took first place in the Buckeye League Sunday, breaking a tie that has existed all season, by shutting out Bellbrook 3 to 0 while the Dayton Police were losing to the Beavertown Reds 4 to 1.

Beavertown both out and out-fielded the cops. The winners made ten hits and fielded faultlessly behind the invincible pitching of Sherman, who yielded six hits and struck out eleven batters. Leeper, Police hurler, allowed ten hits and fanned twelve batters. Score by innings: Beavertown.....000 010 021-4 Police.....000 000 010-1

Harshmanville triumphed over the Osborn Miami Cements 5 to 3 in the other league game. Harshman was out of thirteen to six, but Landis, the winning pitcher, was effective in the pinches and kept the Cement players away from the plate for the first seven innings. Score by innings: Harshmanville.....003 020 000-5 Osborn.....000 000 030-3

HOME BAND PLEASURES BASEBALL FANS ON 40 AND 8 PROGRAM

The O. S. and S. O. Home Cadet Band, under leadership of Professor H. E. Seal, entertained thousands of fans with a number of selections during the baseball double-header of the Cincinnati Reds with Philadelphia at Redland Field Sunday afternoon.

Saturday was to be "Forty and Eight Day" at the ball park but rain forced postponement of the Brooklyn game and cancellation of plans for a celebration and parade at the field.

Instead, members of the society attended the Sunday twin bill and a delegation presented, Eppa Rixey Tangeman, 1b, 4 1 1 14 0 1.

The band had just returned from playing during a four-day convention at Canton. Tuesday night it will give a concert in Jamestown under auspices of Jamestown business men. Thursday night an open air band concert will probably be given in Xenia, donated to business men of the city in appreciation for services rendered during the past year.

ONE KILLED WHEN TRAINS COLLIDE

MILLERSPORT, O., June 20.—One was killed another injured and two freight engines were wrecked at Melgo, near here, early today when two freight trains crashed head on, on the southern division of the New York Central Railroad.

B. O. Romaine, 45, Middleport, fireman on the southbound train was killed instantly, and his body burned beyond recognition when caught beneath the firebox. C. H. Thomas, 31, fireman on the northbound train, sustained a wrenching back and internal injuries when he jumped. The engineers saved themselves by jumping. It was reported.

Trainmen report that the northbound train ran into an open switch and crashed into the southbound train which was waiting on a siding.

Officials could not account for the open switch, and reported that both engineers were following orders.

CIRCUS EXHIBITS TO LARGE CROWDS

Rainy weather did not keep large crowds from attending both afternoon and evening performances of the Christy Bros. circus which exhibited at the Ringer show grounds, Cincinnati Ave., Saturday.

Circus visitors were pleased with both performances and amazed at the large number of animals carried. Performing animal troupes featured the exhibitions although there were aerial acrobats, equestrians and clown acrobats.

BILL TILDEN WINS FIRST TENNIS TILT

WIMBLEDON, England, June 20.—"Big Bill" Tilden inaugurated the Wimbledon tennis championship today with an easy victory over G. A. Pratt of England.

Playing before a huge and fashionable crowd in the centre court, Tilden ran out a victory at 6-2, 6-1, 6-0, in a most casual manner. Pratt had just barely managed to qualify for the tournament. Tilden playing in a light hearted manner, occasionally drove in the net to make the score more interesting.

During the last set Tilden speeded up and amidst applause from the gallery displayed unusual fine tennis, scoring service ace after service ace.

THE PRICE SHE PAID
CHICAGO.—Louise Mitchell, daughter of John J. Mitchell, banker, returned from her winter home in California and catching sight of her fiancé threw herself into his arms. In the same gesture she threw away $25,000 in gems. The case containing the jewels dropped unnoticed and were not missed until some time later. A "lost and found" advertisement offered $2,500 for the return of the gems.

The next twelvemonth will lay particularly heavy burdens upon Calvin

Coolidge. He will have an exciting congress on his hands, for one thing. Whether the president is to be a candidate for re-election, or not, he will be in the forefront of the 1928 campaign, as the official leader of the Republican party. For all these reasons, Mr. Coolidge has made no secret of his determination to get out of the Black Hills every inch of physical and mental benefit possible.

From the distressed Mississippi flood district comes one ray of humor, for the authenticity of which no other than Secretary Hoover is said to vouch. It is related that, in company with Red Cross officials, Hoover called upon a colored woman who had given birth to twin girls in a refuge camp. Doctors and nurses were busy administering treatment to ward off contagion. The dusky mother, when asked what she had christened her twins, replied: "Vaccine and Serum."

Over at Bolling field, the army air base near Washington, there are half a dozen especially trim-looking and confidence-inspiring planes, to which visitors' attention is usually drawn. They were pointed out to this observer the morning Colonel Lindbergh hopped off for the big noise in New York. "They're the ships in which the generals cruise," explained a husky young flying officer, "because they're the safest machines on the field. We call 'em 'sacred cows.'"

New York university conferred an honorary L. D. upon Secretary Kellogg the other day. The citation which accompanied the bestowal of the cap and gown by Chancellor Brown took cognizance, in the following terms, of the rough and rocky road which Kellogg has recently been traveling: "You were born to high responsibilities, and they have crowded upon you throughout the years of your public life. In no one of those years have you been more beset with harassing perplexities and cares than in the twelvemonth through which we have just come. It has been your difficult task to shape and maintain, unimpaired a foreign policy that shall be strong in the present and wise for the future; that shall compel respect for our flag abroad, while satisfying, here at home, the desire and determination of our people that America shall still lead in the way to lasting peace. . . .

Former Governor Frank C. Lowden, of Illinois, the principal cloud on the Coolidge horizon, will spend the summer on his estate in the Thousand Islands. He has invited a number of public men to be his guests on the St. Lawrence, mainly for the purpose of discussing agricultural politics. One of the members of congress who will visit Lowden is Representative Meyer Jacobstein, of the Rochester, N. Y., district. Jacobstein has come to be regarded as one of the foremost authorities on Capitol hill in the tangled realm of farm economics. He voted for the McNary-Haugen bill, although he does not consider it by any means an ideal solution of the rural problem. The Institute of Politics, at Williamstown, Mass., has invited the brilliant young Democratic congressman to discuss agriculture at this summer's round table in the Berkshires. . . .

Once again a modest, but slightly capable, private citizen of the Republic becomes temporary master of the White House. He is Rudolph Forster, executive clerk through every administration beginning with and since that of William McKinley. Whenever McKinley, Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson or Harding left Washington for protracted periods, especially summer vacations, Forster was left behind in supreme charge of office matters at the Executive Mansion. He has functioned in that capacity for President Coolidge ever since 1923 and is on the job again now. No one begins to have a glimmer of the intimate knowledge of White House routine that Forster has at his finger-tips. Many a president has acted on his advice. The word mistake is not in Forster's lexicon. He buoys with state secrets and is a past master at keeping them.

Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard, of Chestertown, Md., is the winner of the Woman's National Democratic club's 1928 slogan contest. The victorious suggestion reads: "Eight Years of Wall Street—Give Main Street a Chance." Mrs. Hubbard is one of the potent Democratic leaders of the famed eastern shore. Now and then she's mentioned as a future candidate for governorship of Maryland.

The Rovin' Ritzies By Flo Frederick

Oh! how shall we make our garden grow.
With peas and beans all in a row?
"Let's plant a garden and raise carrots for the rabbits," suggested Patsy.
"And for ourselves," added Tag.
"I like raw carrots with salt."
"If we could rig up some kind of a stove, we could cook all kinds of things," said Marty.
"Oh, please let's do it," cried Betty Ann excitedly. "I'll promise to do all the cooking. Patsy and I will manage the table and dishes and things."
"You're a little ahead of the game, Betty Ann," laughed Marty. "We haven't planted the garden yet, but if you think it would be fun, I'll ask mother if she minds."
Everyone of the Ritzies was enthusiastic over the idea of having a garden of their own and when Mrs. Collins had given her consent, they didn't waste much time in getting it started.
"Let's make it round and put stones around the edge as a border," suggested Tag.

have all the fun you like, but don't really expect anything to grow in that yellow clay!"
This was indeed an unexpected blow. The garden was all spaded and raked ready to be planted and then came the news that nothing would grow in it. The Ritzies weren't ready to give up their plans for a garden just yet and so put their heads together to see what could be done about making over their little patch of clay.
"Let's put some other soil with it," suggested Rag. "Some sand or something."
"Things won't grow in sand," objected Marty.
"Oh, yes they will," corrected Patsy. "Don't you remember that mother started all of her geranium slips in sand?"
"So she did," agreed Marty. "It looks like we would have to rob Betty's sandpile."
Betty didn't care, she was so anxious to have a nice garden and so the boys carried a couple of shovels of sand over to the garden and mixed it up with clay.

COMMERCIAL LINES
OVER ATLANTIC TO

him, if accepted, would carry him from Detroit on the Canadian border to New Orleans on the gulf coast, from San Francisco on the Pacific to Boston on the Atlantic. If the youth has his way, he undoubtedly will visit them all.

The four brothers will be arranged on the advice of Lindy's financial backers. He attended one conference last night at the palatial suburban home of Harry Hall Knight, millionaire St. Louis. Besides the host, the conference included Harold M. Bixby, president of the St. Louis chamber of commerce, Major William B. Robertson, head of the air mail line on which "Slim" served as a pilot, and B. F. Mahoney of San Diego. They were to meet again today.

These backers of the air hero shrouded their deliberations with secrecy. They declined to discuss his plans for the future but said an announcement could be made some time this week.

It was learned through that Lindy will leave St. Louis Wednesday or Thursday although his destination was withheld. One report stated the air hero would fly back to Washington to confer with government experts over the technical decisions written into the log of his trans-Atlantic flight.

Lindy will publish the log within a few weeks and his publishers were said to have urged him to complete the copy at once.

Lindy was concerned with another problem—the ultimate disposition of his precious plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis." It was suggested to him that he turn it over as an exhibit to the national museum in Washington but Lindy would not commit himself. "I can't go into that now," was his reply. Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, mother of the hero, who shares honors with him here, was scheduled to return to Detroit today. Her future was shrouded with mystery as friends of Lindy were understood to have urged her to give up her job as a school teacher in Detroit and come to live with him in St. Louis. Mrs. Lindbergh, however, has signed a contract to continue as a teacher next year in the Cass Technical High School at Detroit and recently said she "intended to keep her job."

As for the youth's business future, Lindy made it rather plain that he intends to remain in aviation. In speaking to 100,000 persons gathered in the open air at Forest Park Sunday, he said: "St. Louis is in a position to be the center of aviation in this country. With proper cooperation we can put St. Louis as the center of aviation in this country."

His use of the pronoun "we" in this instance was not taken to include his famous plane but rather as a reference to his St. Louis backers.

The air hero spent an active Sunday. In the forenoon, he visited the U. S. Veterans Hospital at Jefferson barracks, outside the city of St. Louis. In the afternoon, he flew his plane over the city and later attended the Forest Park celebration.

At night, he attended a municipal opera in the open air at Forest Park, while an audience of 12,000 cheered him. Other thousands, unable to get seats, stood outside to cheer.

Lindy became a full fledged colonel during the day. He received two commissions, one as a colonel in the U. S. army reserve corps from Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis, and another, as a colonel in the Missouri national guard, from Governor Sam A. Baker.

The official functions here ended last night but Lindy has accepted

COMMENCEMENT AT ANTIOCH OPENS AT
VESPER SERVICES

Commencement week at Antioch College opened Sunday evening with vesper services on the college campus, the Rev. Hugh L. Evans, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Dayton, delivering the sermon on the subject "The Inevitability of a Spiritual Life," before the 1927 graduating class.

The Rev. Mr. Evans was introduced by President Arthur E. Morgan, who later talked a few minutes on the subject, "Developing Purpose at Antioch College."

In the course of his sermon, the minister declared that "in even our materialistic world of today, thinking people are coming face to face with the need for a spiritual life and a need particularly for the message of Jesus Christ."

He concluded by saying: "Our most materialistic begin by saying they are agnostic, but in their search for some faith for which to cling, finally claim a belief in the mechanistic cause and effect, which a close analysis reveals as a hunger for filling up the void brought with it a spiritual life as inevitable as the life itself."

The baccalaureate services opened a week crammed with activities which will close Saturday with commencement exercises, when fifty-two students receive their diplomas. President Morgan will deliver the baccalaureate address and Dean Philip Nash will distribute the diplomas.

Action of a jury in Common Pleas Court in returning a verdict in favor of the defendant in a suit brought by the Greene County Lumber Co. against Laura Dunkle and others to recover a personal judgment against Laura Dunkle for material furnished in the erection of a house and to assert a mechanic's lien against the property, was affirmed by the Court of Appeals Thursday.

The case was tried by a jury and resulted in a verdict for the defendant signed by nine members of the jury. December 1 the case was again heard and the court found in her favor, dismissing the petition.

Regarding the claim of the personal liability of Laura Dunkle, the Appellate Court declared the action was one at law and would not be appealable to the Court of Appeals.

The first cause of action in the amended petition of the lumber company involves the equitable liability of Laura S. Dunkle for materials furnished to her contractor and for which the lumber firm filed papers necessary to create a mechanic's lien.

These papers were filed within sixty days after January 14, 1927, and depended for the validity of the lien, upon whether an item furnished January 14, was a valid item within the meaning of the mechanic's lien law, and whether the furnishing of a certain lock January 14 operated to extend the time for filing of the lien to a period sixty days from that date.

The lock was valued at ninety cents. The higher court commented: "Upon consideration of the evidence as to the delivery of the lock January 14, we cannot escape the conclusion it was furnished expressly for the purpose of extending the lien and was furnished solely upon the order of J. W. Kendrick, the contractor, the contractor, at the instance of the lumber company. At that time the contractor had at least temporarily abandoned the work."

Attorneys F. L. Johnson and C. L. Darlington represented the lumber company and attorneys J. C. and L. T. Marshall, the defendant, Laura Dunkle.

My Son's Sweetheart's
by IDAH McGLONE GIBSON

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Philip Wynne Tracy IV has had a childish engagement with Natalie Jones. Becoming interested in Lynn Hildard, an old friend of his mother's, he soon finds he is falling in love with her.

Philip Tracy and Rodney Maxwell are among the first to enlist in the World war.

Philip's regiment is sent to the front soon after arriving in France, and Phil is wounded while on a dangerous mission. Rod is killed trying to save his friend and Phil receives the croix de guerre for bravery.

While recovering in the south of France, armistice is declared and Phil, meeting certain requirements, is awarded a scholarship in a French university and returns to Paris.

His mother, not having heard from him for months, goes to France to hunt him, and Major Aukland, who is devoted to Anne Tracy, accompanies her. Unexpectedly, she comes face to face with her son.

The next morning at breakfast Phil and his mother talk things over and to her consternation Mrs. Tracy learns that Phil intends to marry a French divorcee with a four-year-old child. She collapses, as Phil leaves her, and Major Aukland, who has come to take her out, hearing her sobs, walks into the room.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XLVI
DOWN TO EARTH AGAIN

THAT boy of yours, Anne, certainly takes after his father. He gets in and out of love with great celerity and dispatch. All your suspicions seem to agree with what he tells you from time to time."

Mrs. Tracy had bathed her tear-swollen face and slightly lightened the tint of her nose with powder, and now, partially composed, was sitting with her back to the light, facing Major Aukland.

"Are you sure you understood Philip, my dear?"

"I could not mistake him. He said that he did not want to go back to the States ever—and when I taxed him with being interested in some woman, he acknowledged I was right. Oh, John, what shall I do?"

"Marry me," answered Major Aukland promptly.

"Don't joke about it, John. It's too serious a matter."

"I never was more serious in my life, Anne."

"But don't you see that is not a solution? I cannot leave Philip over here while I go back to America. Surely you can understand that after what you saw yesterday."

"I have no objection to living in France, or Timbuctoo, provided you are there, dear," asserted John Aukland.

"Neither does that help, John. The truth of the matter is that I do not want Philip to stay in France. With the money that his grandmother left him and what will be his after I am gone—combined with his wife's fortune, he can live a life of ease here, but with the great American background that he has, it would seem like the betrayal of his ancestors to be an alien to his own land."

"Is her money inherited?"

"She had before the war one of the largest silk factories in France. It has been pretty badly shot to pieces, but I am sure that I can be quickly restored," Mrs. Tracy explained.

"Well, that will certainly give Philip something to do."

"But don't you understand, John, that Philip's ancestors have all been professional men—lawyers, architects and surgeons? Just before the war he said he intended to follow his father and grandfather in the law."

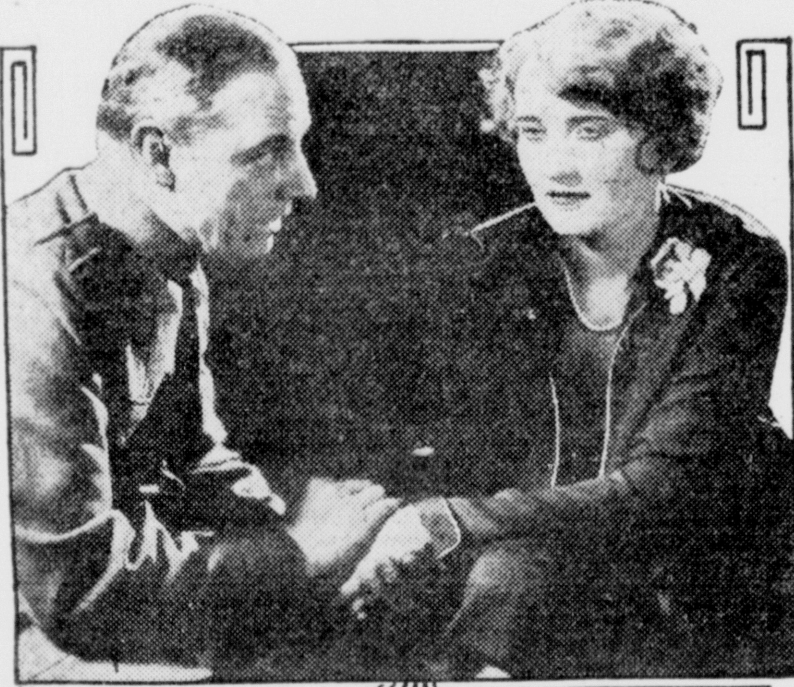

"Many a boy, Anne, has pulled aloof from what his forefathers have done."

"John Aukland, are you trying to plead Philip's cause?"

"No, Anne dear, I'm afraid I am just trying to help my own," answered the major honestly. "However, I will not do that any longer. The worst thing about this whole affair is that the lady in question is of a different race—that she is 10 years older than Philip, who is too young to know his own mind—and that she has a child four years old."

"That's the whole thing in a nutshell, John. In fifteen years, Philip would probably be making love to his wife's daughter."

John Aukland grinned. "I don't think the marriage would last that long—not with a Tracy," he comforted.

"I have no objection to living in France or Timbuctoo, provided you are there, dear."

"I DON'T know about that, John," said Anne Tracy, who refused to see any light in the situation. "Philip has a great streak of loyalty in his make-up."

"What about Natalie?" Major Aukland asked rather naively.

"I don't think he has ever felt bound to Natalie. You see, she has always been too proud to let him think he was under any love obligations to her. I am sure he got that impression from her last letter. John, I was that way with Philip's father, and I think that is why I could not keep him. The Tracys have always thought more of their 'word'—spoken or implied—than of their sexual faithfulness to the women who loved them. Anyway, it's on the knees of the gods."

"Come on, John, let's go over to the Louvre. I want to look again at that smile on the face of 'Mona Lisa.' If it is sincere, that woman had suffered, and in suffering had learned how to laugh at all the world, including herself. Perhaps I'll have to take a leaf out of her book soon."

"She was a great girl, Anne, but I don't think we have time to do that. Phil will be coming in a few minutes, and I am going to take you to Armenville to dinner."

That night the major never batted an eyelash when he was cut by some of the other A. E. F. officers because he was dining in a public restaurant with an enlisted man.

Not a word was said about this, but Anne was extremely grateful. Strange as it may seem, however, Phil rather resented the fact that Major Aukland made a regimental faux pas seemingly with eager gladness because he knew it would please the woman he loved. In time of peace, at least, he put her before regimental red tape.

The days that had dragged on leaden feet while Phil was away from her, now rushed past so swiftly that Anne did not know where they went. She met many of her friends in Paris. She made new friends in both the American and French legation sets.

Pat had called upon her, and she had returned the call with ceremony. She had met Pat's mother and sensed immediately that she was quite as much opposed to Philip's marrying her daughter as Anne was opposed to Pat marrying her son.

He, however, never made any reference to his romance, but at least one evening each week she was left to the tender mercies of Major Aukland, who always had some gorgeous and amusing entertainment for her.

Late spring in Paris, than which nothing on this earth can be more beautiful, found everything on exactly the same footing as it was when she arrived in France.

Anne and Philip had unfortunately dropped from that plane of emotional fervor to which they rose on their first meeting. They had become just everyday mother and son. Down in the heart of each there still remained the feeling that their great love for each other was there, but it was not to be brought out in everyday life.

Anne, on the advice of Major
